If it is true that at the end of every rainbow there is a pot of gold, then it should come as no surprise those rainbows begin and end in Lake Tahoe.

Gold comes in the form of gaming chips, nuggets of snow and a jewel of a lake. The rainbow, well, that's the people.

Ascent: The Winter Party at Lake Tahoe is designed to celebrate what some may consider an eclectic mix of indoor and outdoor glitz. The Feb. 26-March 5, 2006, winter party is ratcheting up the fun meter.

Heavenly Mountain Resort, with its famed World Cup run, is the host ski area. Leave the snow pants and jacket behind; they just won't fit in with drag races down the front of the mountain — a run that can be seen from the main road in town.

If you must wear traditional ski wear, no worries; you'll look like one of the locals. After all, it is a group of locals which is putting on this eight-day extravaganza. The nonprofit Lake Tahoe Gay Lesbian Foundation is making this the gay ski.

Contracts have been sent out to fill the showrooms of the major casinos. So far, Kathy Griffin is signed on to bring her comedy to MontBleu (aka Caesars Tahoe) on March 3. Ant, who has been tearing up the comedy scene in Los Angeles, will open for her. Ticketmaster is selling tickets for $35. Judy Gold and Scott Kennedy will bring in the laughter at Harveys' Improv — date and pricing are still in the works. The Indigo Girls rocked Ascent 2005. Groups of that caliber are being wooed for Ascent 2006. As entertainers are booked, they will be added to the Ascent website at www.ascentlaketahoe.com.

With Ascent being on the South Shore of Lake Tahoe, organizers can tap into the resources of two states. Most of the skiing will be in California, where there are more than a half dozen resorts within an easy drive. The Nevada side is where the all-night partying will be. Stateline is a gambling town that doesn't know the meaning of the word "closed."

This doesn't mean the California side is a sleepy little hamlet. For those who don't want casino action — gaming or otherwise — there are bars and nightclubs just across the state line.

Après ski parties will be spread around the South Shore to give Ascent attendees a little taste of this oasis in the Sierra Nevada. Food choices run the gamut from steakhouses to seafood being flown in daily to Italian to French to California cuisine.

While the sun is out, in addition to alpine skiing and snowboarding, there will be snowshoeing, cross country skiing, ice skating, sleigh rides and tubing.

For those who don't like to play in the white stuff, there are other ways to have fun. There is plenty of shopping at Heavenly Village, gaming at six casinos and nightly entertainment.

Because this is a charitable event, the founders of Ascent do not want to lose the sense of community as the festivities take on a life of their own. The beneficiaries will be visible throughout the week for Ascent-goers to learn more about where some of their money is going. Beneficiaries include local charities Sierra Foothill AIDS Foundation, Lake Tahoe Women's Center, Sierra Recover Center, Tahoe Arts Project, Tahoe Youth and Family Services and CASA. The Point Foundation and Matthew Shepard Foundation are the event's national charities. Judy Shepard was the keynote speaker last year at the signature event, A Rainbow of Hope. This year's tribute to the eight beneficiaries will be March 2 at Harveys Lake Tahoe, which is also the host hotel for Ascent.

Check out www.ascentlaketahoe.com for all of the activities during Ascent as well as to book your reservations. Go to www.ltna.org to find out a little more about Lake Tahoe. ▼

SUM YUNG GUY

Have you ever heard of a condition known as “writer’s block?”

At the risk of becoming gratuitously scatological, the best analogy I can come up with is “linguistic constipation.” There’s a bunch of words somewhere in my verbal digestive tract but I’ll be damned if I can squeeze them out. In fact, if you followed the metaphor to its logical conclusion, you could accurately say that I’m full of shit.

Apparently I’m not the only one who connects language in general (and this column in particular) to base bodily functions. A reader told me he was perusing one of my reviews a couple months ago while engaging in his morning constitutional when he stumbled across a line so funny it gave him — and I quote — “explosive diarrhea.” You may find this utterly distasteful, but it’s considered a compliment of the highest order in the underground world of bathroom journalism.

Speaking of bathrooms, last month I pissed and moaned all over the place about the influx of foreign porn. So what’s on tap this time around? Not one, but two flicks born in other countries. Why, you ask, would I watch something in which I have little, if any, interest? Could it be out of a sincere desire to provide a wide range of diverse stuff?

Don’t kid yourself. They were the two newest movies I had in stock at the moment.

Scandinavian Erotic Video Productions (hereafter known as SEVP) has not only established itself as a prolific outfit the past few years, but they’re also my relatives. Much of me is Finn (sort of like a mermaid), but I’ve been told the Swedes have contributed a significant chunk as well. I’ve taken the emotional risk of scrutinizing my body in the mirror, however, and I share fewer physical similarities with these models than I do with my cat (and he’s been fixed).

The flick is called Outdoor Sex 2. The little red circle with a slash through the condom on the box cover indicates the guys do more than just sit around and swill over-priced vodka. And the director — some dude named Rosenbaum — suggests that Hitler never made it as far North as he may have liked.

So what’s the deal with Ole and Sven and the rest of those goofy Laplanders? Near as I can figure they do the oinky-boinky the same as everyone else. English subtitles would’ve been nice, as I can’t understand them except for a couple words, such as “ABBA” and “sucks.” The production values are mediocre at best, and the film jumps from scene to scene with no transitions or set-up.

So why bother?

The models are unusually hot, especially when you consider they’re chillingly close to the Arctic Circle. But here’s the kicker: not in at some of the titles from SEVP, but just not this one. And that, my friends, has got to be the most ass-backwards, Finlander method of movie reviewing since that time Gene Siskel got into the Oxycontin.

Confucius say: “Man who goes through airport turnstile with erection is going to Bangkok.”

Tom says: “Two of my perverted friends just got back from one of those sex junkets to Thailand and I’m going to razz them in print under the ruse of covering a flick from Thai Twink productions called Hidden Pleasures.”

I’ve never been a big fan of Asian guys, primarily because whenever you have sex with one you’re horny an hour later. But the dudes in this movie appear to offer enough hormonal chutzpah to keep the old American queens licking their chopsticks. They’re young and smooth with surprisingly substantial egg rolls. They’re cuter than you might expect for purebreds. And they serve up some pretty generous portions of sticky rice, complete with bean sprouts and pea pods.

Director Tim Woodh (he really needs to get the “H” out of there) shoots these guys in some exotic, picturesque locales. The box cover touts facial cumshot. The second scene features an artistic dual stroke job in which both boys blow their soy sauce into a tropical pond. None of them are notable stars, but let’s be honest: names like Moo, Koe, Beer, and Toy don’t carry much marketability, although I understand Beer is fairly impressive when it comes to head.

Like SEVP, Thai Twink’s stuff offers little in terms of dialogue. Why should it? Woodh could just throw a bunch of silverware down the stairs, slap it on a soundtrack, and we’d never notice. One of my pervy friends claims to speak the lingo, but all he can really muster is “where’s the bathroom?” and “here’s my PIN number.” Nonetheless, Hidden Pleasures has enough erotic moments to keep even the most vehement xenophobe on international holiday.

And with our holidays fast approaching, maybe these guys ought to do a Christmas-based porn flick. They’d have to call it, of course, Babes in Thailand. ▼ this movie. You heard me right. These guys ain’t cute. They ain’t sexy. Give them a few extra pounds and they could be me. So what the hell am I talking about?

The guys that SEVP normally uses are unusually hot. Most are blond-haired, blue-eyed Nordic knockouts. In this sense, you could say that I’m not reviewing Outdoor Sex 2 nearly so much as I’m summarizing the nature of the production company. And herein lies the rub, as it were: my critical perspective is almost always rooted in general characteristics more so than specific details, kind of like my sex life. I find it far easier — not to mention ironically more accurate — to use ambiguous modifiers such as “tiny,” “pathetic,” and “hideous” rather than explicit adjectives such as “monstrous,” “throbbing,” and “engorged.”

My recommendation, then, is to take a look es·cha·tol·o·gy n.

1. The branch of theology that is concerned with the end of the world or humankind.
2. A belief or a doctrine concerning the ultimate or final things, such as death, the destiny of humanity, the Second Coming or the Last Judgment.

Keith is not speaking to me right now. I hope it is only for now, but I don't know. He wants to be my boyfriend, and I'm crazy about him, but not like that. It sucks.

I suppose the healthy thing to do is admit we cannot be friends at all while an attraction still exists, but I really like this guy. And I don't like being healthy. Keith is the right size, he's creative, he's a great communicator and he's honest. Plus he's amazing with all the 'round-the-house, fix-'em-up jobs I'd rather leave undone than make worse in my pathetic attempt to be handy. Keith is so grounded he could make a lighting rod jealous, and if there's one thing I need a guy to be, it's grounded. Until, that is, I learn how to slap some sense into myself those days I spend thirty minutes debating whether I have time to stop for coffee before work.

Keith's disqualifier is that he's not an intellectual dork. That is not to say he isn't smart; those are not the same thing. One bias I'd like to remove from society is that a big vocabulary or a quick ability to add makes someone "smart." It don't. I have a big vocabulary, and I'd say it makes me deceptive. Declaring I can't fix my computer because "I'm a Luddite" sure exempts me from being the moron who can't find the on/off switch. It's amazing what a ruse a few big words (or smaller ones like "ruse") can throw.

No, being an intellectual has nothing to do with how smart you are. It has more to do with how much you want to talk about it. For instance, if my friends and I see a movie, it is never enough to say it was simply good or bad. We have to first argue over whether there was a slight blue tint to the screen every time the protagonist appeared, if the supporting actress' middle name had somehow influenced her being cast, and what the film would've been like had all the characters been anthropomorphic plants a la Little Shop of Horrors. (Then, of course, we'd have to have the same discussion about Little Shop of Horrors because someone had brought it up.)

Keith would rather say the movie was good or bad and go to sleep in peace. He would not wake up concerned he'd been too forceful with his opinion; he would not get early wrinkles from a fear of sounding phony. I wish to God I were that way too, but I simply am not. I need someone who's lived through such neuroses to teach me how to ditch them, or embrace them, from experience.

It seems the underlying message of anything supposedly inspirational — be it a poem, a song, or a goofy card from Hallmark — is that love is all you need. I need to disagree. If love were all we needed, we'd all marry a Golden Retriever. We need a lining up of things. We need that onomatopoeic "click," that absence of red flags. But sometimes when we hear that "click," and see no crimson warnings — or vermillion flags, or orange ones, or yellow signals either — we still know the end is close to us, we just may not know why. Right now I need to let it do its thing.

As I fretted over the healthiest ending of things with me and Keith, he initiated silence, a silence I'm hoping will end just as the pain it caused me is starting to. I know it will, because everything does. This pain will end, this silence will end, our relationship in all its forms will one day end, will end, will end; and with it all, my fear that anything can have an end at all, most especially a feeling, most disturbingly, a friend. ▼

GOD! YOU ARE SO INTELLECTUALLY DISHONEST! YOU'RE LIKE THE BUSH ADMINISTRATION, FIXING THE INTEL-LIGENCE TO SUPPORT YOUR SELF-SERVING POLICY.

Scorpio

(October 23-November 21)

Full Moon in Taurus on Nov. 15 gets the month off to a flying start. But, physical energies nosedive on the 21st. Thanksgiving looks low key and drama free. Opportunity for career growth appears on Dec. 1. Stay home alone on the 4th. Tempers may flare on the 11th.

Sagittarius

(November 22-December 21)

Nov. 17 and 18 are best for self promotion. Unexpected cash comes in on the 22nd. You'll have multiple turkey day invites to choose from. A night on the town Dec. 2 proves exhilarating. Take a mini vacation from the 7th-10th. A new love interest on the way.

Capricorn

(December 22-January 19)

The work pace is slow but picks up after the 19th. A cycle bringing new clients and added revenue hits between the 28th and 30th. It's best to avoid socializing on Dec. 3. Lunar influences make you restless on the 7th. Don't try to push through any agendas on the 14th.

Aquarius

(January 20-February 18)

Work and career must come first until Nov. 21. That's what'll lead to the bigger bucks. Out of towns guests brighten thanksgiving for you. The 1st proves to be a chaotic but productive day. Resist force feeding your opinion on the 9th. You can do no wrong on the 11th and 12th.

Pisces

(February 19-March 19)

Your recognition factor climbs as of Nov. 20. There's more play money than usual for the 26th. A nagging bill is paid off on the 30th. Don't hesitate to seek guidance on Dec. 3. Physical energies absolutely soar on the 8th. News from back home just delights you on the 14th.

Aries

(March 20-April 19)

Your vision is clear and on target from Nov. 15-20. Don't apply for loans/ mortgages on the 23rd. Finalize Xmas travel plans by the 28th. A cash crunch on Dec. 5 and 6 unsettles you. Your faith and temper are tested on the 11th. Count to 10 before answering back on the 12th.

Taurus

(April 20-May 20)

Full Moon in your sign on Nov. 15 highlights the career spotlight. Your reputation is growing. Splurge for that new surround sound system on the 21st. Real estate deals look especially strong on Dec. 3. State your views clearly on the 6th. Avoid highway driving on the 13th.

Gemini

(May 21-June 21)

A mixed bag awaits you. Financial aspects look super, especially after Nov. 19. Love matters are another thing completely. Don't lower your standards just to not be alone. You'll shine at work on Dec. 1. Avoid family disagreement on the 9th. Go off and hide/veg out on the 12th.

Cancer

(June 22-July 22)

Between work and tackling home renovations, you're approaching burnout. A Thanksgiving getaway will help recharge those batteries. Nov. 29 looks best for attracting new clients. You'll bounce all over town on Dec. 5. A social gala on the 10th proves to be fun and profitable.

Leo

(July 23-August 22)

You'll be practically irresistible on Nov. 18. Career aspects look rock solid as of the 25th. Don't go overboard trying for a new look. You'll be the toast of the town on Dec. 3. Make the most of a tense work situation by holding your tongue. Physical energies may dip on the 14th.

Virgo

(August 23-September 22)

Extreme mood swings could plague you on Nov. 15 and 16. Don't take criticism to heart on the 20th. Your love life smoothes out finally after turkey day. Offer words of support to a troubled friend on Dec. 2. Don't spread yourself too thin on the 10th or you'll risk a burn out.

Libra

(September 23-October 22)

That lovely period of relative calm concludes on Nov. 20. After that, fasten that seat belt Libra and prepare to blast off. Your services/talents will be in great demand on the 28th. Incoming cash flow surges on Dec. 5. Romantic encounter on the 11th puts you in a lovely daze.
