LAUNCHING INTERNATIONAL
CONTENT CREATORS AWARDS
DURING AVN WEEK

Whether you're a local or tourist, we always feature our favorite spots along with all the new and exciting things our city has to offer.

This week we feature the International Content Creators Awards (ICCA), founded by adult film star Jordan Starr, which celebrates global adult content creators and their collaborations. Launching January 20, 2025, in Las Vegas, the ICCA culminates with a star-studded May event in Puerto Vallarta, highlighting creators' innovation, diversity, and the evolving landscape of adult entertainment.

It's a busy LGBTQ+ January in Las Vegas with Sin City Classic, GayVN Awards and Hustlaball also in town.

We're preparing for the arrival of Creating Change 2025 with an interview with conference director Fern López, and are happy to announce that Weeknd Pass tickets will be available for locals for only $50, and live streams of plenaries will also be available on YouTube.

Creating Change 2025

Fernando López On Bringing Passion, Purpose, and Progress to Las Vegas

For the first time in its history, the Creating Change Conference, one of the most significant events in the LGBTQ+ advocacy movement, is coming to Las Vegas. At the helm of this year's gathering is Fernando López (they/them), the newly appointed Conference Director, who brings decades of activism and a deeply personal connection to the cause.

A Personal Journey of Advocacy

Fernando López's journey into LGBTQ+ advocacy began over 25 years ago, rooted in personal experiences of trauma and discrimination. Growing up in a small, homophobic farming community in rural California, Fernando faced immense challenges, including homelessness at the age of 15. These early struggles fueled their passion for fighting for equality and inclusion.

"It was really facing all of that discrimination that led me to say, 'I have to do something about this,'" Fernando shares. "That's what brought me into this work 25 years ago."

Fernando's professional advocacy journey started with Equality California, where their first day on the job included onboarding through the National LGBTQ Task Force and its Creating Change Conference. This introduction in 2005 marked the beginning of a lifelong connection to the event and the organization.

"Creating Change is so much more than a conference," Fernando explains. "It's a gathering of the leading minds in research, activism, policy, and advocacy, all coming together to share ideas and strategies."

After serving as a contractor for the Task Force during last year's conference, Fernando officially joined the team in July 2024 as Senior Strategist and Conference Director. Their leadership comes at a critical time for the LGBTQ+ movement, as the community faces increasing challenges.

Bringing the Movement to Las Vegas

The decision to host Creating Change in Las Vegas has been met with enthusiasm from local LGBTQ+ organizations and activists. For Fernando, this year's location holds special meaning.

"It's been such a joy to see how deeply meaningful this conference is to the local community and how much folks have leaned in to support it," they say. "Seeing the joy and connections that are already forming makes all the work worthwhile."

The conference is expected to welcome 2,500 to 3,000 attendees, with over 500 speakers and more than 400 points of engagement, including workshops, caucuses, plenaries, and special events. The scale and complexity of the event are immense, but every detail is planned with intentionality to create a space for learning, connection, and joy.

Highlights and Themes for 2025

This year's theme, "Rooted in Resistance, Power, and Love," reflects the resilience and strength of the LGBTQ+ community. Two plenaries stand out for Fernando: "Democracy, Fascism, and the Road Ahead," which addresses the erosion of democracy and the rise of fascism, and "We Got Us," a session led by transgender leaders exploring safety and security through intersectional lenses.

"We fight with love, and we fight for love," Fernando emphasizes. "This year's curriculum reflects that deeply, showing how our community resists and thrives even in the face of adversity."

A Transformative Experience

For first-time attendees, Fernando encourages attending the orientation session to prepare for what they describe as a "radically welcoming" environment.

"Expect to feel overwhelmed by how authentically you can be yourself," they say. "Creating Change is like stepping into a small city of queer acceptance and joy, a space where you can let your shoulders drop and truly feel safe."

The conference also prioritizes community care, with resources such as crisis counselors, low-stimulation rooms, and creative spaces to support attendees navigating challenging moments. This intentional focus on care underscores the Task Force's commitment to fostering resilience within the community.

A Legacy of Change

Creating Change has a history of leaving lasting impacts on its host cities, from inspiring new leaders to launching organizations and initiatives that continue long after the event ends. In Las Vegas, Fernando hopes to strengthen connections among local activists and elevate the work already being done on the ground.

"We're conveners of conveners," they explain. "This conference is about bringing people together, sparking new ideas, and building the tools we need to keep each other safe and empowered."

Looking Ahead

As Fernando reflects on their role and the conference's significance, they emphasize the power of community and shared purpose.

"We keep us safe," they say. "This conference is about connecting with each other, finding hope, and realizing that we already have the tools within our community to keep going and to thrive."

For Fernando López, leading Creating Change 2025 is more than a professional milestone. It's a testament to the transformative power of collective action and a celebration of the LGBTQ+ community's unwavering strength, rooted in resistance, power, and love.

A portrait of Jordan Starr, a man with short dark hair and a light beard, wearing a dark sequined jacket. He is looking directly at the camera with a slight smile.

Jordan Starr Redefines Adult Entertainment with ICCA

In a world where digital content drives influence and creativity knows no bounds, the International Content Creators Awards (ICCA) promises to be a groundbreaking celebration of innovation, artistry, and collaboration. Spearheaded by Jordan Starr, an adult film star and industry trailblazer, the ICCA aims to honor creators from all walks of life. From YouTubers and OnlyFans stars to TikTok influencers and podcasters, the awards will spotlight the modern titans of creativity who are shaping the global media landscape.

The official announcement of the ICCA will take place on January 20th, 2025, during a highly anticipated event at the iconic Gipsy nightclub in Las Vegas. Following the GAYNV Awards Show, attendees will transition to the ICCA reception, which will kick off a vibrant after-party that continues at Piranha nightclub. Co-hosted by the charismatic Drake Von, this night will not only mark the launch of the ICCA but also set the tone for the buzzworthy awards show slated for May at the luxurious Almar Resort in Puerto Vallarta, Mexico.

Honoring Creators: The Inspiration Behind the ICCA

The concept for the ICCA stems from Jordan Starr's passion for recognizing and elevating content creators who often work tirelessly behind the scenes to entertain, educate, and inspire audiences. Starr's journey in the adult entertainment world, combined with his unique insight into the content creation industry, has positioned him as the perfect visionary for this initiative.

In an exclusive interview with QVegas Magazine, Starr shared, "The ICCA is by creators, for creators, and their collaborations. It's about giving a platform to the people who are innovating and pushing boundaries in content creation, no matter the medium or genre." This inclusive and celebratory ethos ensures that the ICCA will represent a diverse range of talent, from digital pioneers to niche artists.

The January 20th Launch Event

Las Vegas is no stranger to glitz and glamour, and the ICCA launch event at Gipsy nightclub will be no exception. Known for its vibrant atmosphere and history as a premier LGBTQ+ nightlife destination, Gipsy is the perfect setting for an event that celebrates creativity and collaboration. Attendees can expect a star-studded evening filled with entertainment, networking opportunities, and a sneak peek into what the ICCA has in store for May.

Starr emphasized the importance of uniting the community at the event, stating, "It's a wonderful night where our community comes together to celebrate. After we honor the studio side of the industry, it's just as vital to shine a light on the content creator side and celebrate the incredible work happening there."

Building Momentum for May's Awards Show

The ICCA's inaugural awards ceremony in May 2025 will take place at the Almar Resort in Puerto Vallarta, an opulent venue known for its breathtaking views and luxurious accommodations. This choice of location reflects the ICCA's commitment to celebrating creators in style and sophistication. The ceremony will feature awards in a variety of categories, recognizing excellence in content creation across platforms such as Instagram, YouTube, OnlyFans, and more.

Starr explained the event's structure, highlighting its focus on collaboration and celebration. "We're providing spaces for creators to connect, collaborate, and celebrate. From a reception at Eden to a pool party at Mantamar, the awards show itself, and a rooftop after-party at Industry nightclub, the experience will be unforgettable," he said.

A unique aspect of the ICCA is its focus on international collaboration. Starr added, "The most expensive and challenging part of connecting with other creators is getting to them. By gathering creators from all over the world in one place, we're creating opportunities for collaborations that will broaden everyone's reach."

Why the ICCA is Needed

The ICCA's launch comes at a pivotal time for the content creation industry. Starr highlighted the shift in the industry, noting, "There's a huge shift in numbers going up for content creators as the digital space evolves. Traditional studio models have paved the way, but the content creation community is much larger than what's currently represented. It's time to give these creators and their work the recognition they deserve."

Starr also pointed out the limitations of traditional award shows. "Studio work is highly produced and curated, but content creation is personal and real. This platform acknowledges the authenticity and connection that creators bring to their work," he explained.

Additionally, the ICCA aims to unite a fragmented landscape. "The content creator community isn't just national; it's global. Yet, there's no international embodiment to encompass everyone. Creators from Europe, America, and beyond deserve a platform that brings them together," Starr emphasized.

What to Expect at the ICCA

The ICCA will feature over 30 award categories, ranging from traditional accolades like "Best Oral Scene" and "Best Group Scene" to modern recognitions for TikToks, Instagram reels, and other social media content. This broad scope ensures that creators' work across various platforms and mediums is celebrated.

"Some categories really differentiate us," Starr shared. "We're acknowledging the work creators do beyond their collaborations, focusing on things like social media engagement, innovative scenes, and viral moments. It's about celebrating the full spectrum of content creation."

Another highlight of the ICCA is its inclusive nature. "We're creating a space where fans can meet the objects of their admiration," Starr explained. "It's about connection—between creators, between fans, and across borders."

The Future of Content Creation

As digital platforms evolve, the content creation industry faces both opportunities and challenges. Starr noted that platforms like OnlyFans have become dominant, but creators can't rely on one platform alone. "You have to diversify," he advised. "From TikTok to Instagram, Twitter, and beyond, creators need to be everywhere their audience is."

Starr also touched on the resilience of the industry in the face of legal and societal challenges. "Restrictions and changes are inevitable, but the community always adapts. Everything that has a beginning has an end, but new platforms and opportunities will arise," he said.

The May Event in Puerto Vallarta

The ICCA's grand event in Puerto Vallarta promises to be a multi-day extravaganza. Starr detailed the itinerary, which includes a reception at Eden, a pool party at Mantamar with an international DJ, the awards ceremony itself, and an after-party at Industry nightclub. The event will culminate in a unique "Collab Con," providing creators with spaces to collaborate and connect.

"The concentration of creators from all over the world in one place will have a ripple effect," Starr said. "It's about expanding reach, forming new connections, and celebrating the incredible diversity of our community."

Looking Ahead

As the ICCA prepares for its grand launch, Starr is optimistic about its potential to unite and elevate the content creation community. He concluded, "This is a new day. For the first time ever, content creators have something that's 100% dedicated to what they do. We're here to celebrate, connect, and grow as a community."

The International Content Creators Awards are more than an awards show—they're a movement. By honoring creators and fostering collaboration, the ICCA is poised to redefine what it means to be a content creator in the digital age. From Las Vegas to Puerto Vallarta, this initiative promises to leave an indelible mark on the industry and inspire a new era of creativity and connection.
