CELEBRATING 30 YEARS OF SERVICE

Trailblazers of Change: Celebrating Excellence in the LGBTQ+ Community

The world of advocacy and service is dotted with unsung heroes and influential figures who constantly strive to uplift and support the marginalized, the oppressed, and those in need. Among these luminaries, we find individuals and organizations whose impact cannot be understated. Let's turn the spotlight towards some of them today.

Julian High: A Journey from Gaming to Philanthropy

Julian High, current President & CEO of United Way of Southern Nevada, stands as a beacon of inspiration for many. Born and bred in Southern Nevada, Julian first etched his mark by becoming the first African American to serve as the Director of Community and Government Affairs for Sahara Gaming Corporation. His professional trajectory is replete with significant milestones, one of which includes his tireless work for National Industries for the Blind. However, it was his role as the Director of Diversity, Inclusion, and Human Resources for the Human Rights Campaign that truly cemented his place as an advocate for equality, especially for the LGBTQ+ community.

Upon his return to Las Vegas, with his partner Michael Vaughn in tow, Julian leveraged his background, using his knowledge from the historic Westside neighborhood of Regal Estates to bridge local communities with essential resources. In recognition of his unparalleled efforts, The Center proudly conferred upon him the Lanny D. Love Hero Award.

Lexicon Bank: Banking with a Heart

Named the Organization of the Year by The Center, Lexicon Bank has shown unyielding support for the LGBTQIA+ community. Under the expert stewardship of Russell Rosenblum and Stacy Watkins, Lexicon Bank has remained an unshakeable pillar for The Center, especially during challenging times. Rosenblum, an entrepreneur and philanthropist, and Watkins, a figurehead in the Southern Nevada community, are both beacons of hope and support. Their individual and collective efforts make Lexicon more than just a financial institution.

Julie Cameron-Doe: From Casinos to Causes

As the CFO of Wynn Resorts, Julie Cameron-Doe has shown that the world of finance and resorts can align perfectly with advocacy. Her connection with The Center is personal, deep-rooted in her family. Being honored as Person of the Year is a testament to Julie's commitment to the LGBTQIA+ community. With a background that spans the globe, Julie's advocacy and her association with Wynn highlight the importance of inclusivity in all industries.

Brian Hosier: An Epoch of Service

The journey of Brian Hosier with The Center encapsulates the essence of dedication. Serving as the Chief Operating Officer since 2021, his impending retirement is marked by significant milestones. The establishment of The Center's new onsite pharmacy and the initiation of programs enhancing access to medications for the community bear testament to his leadership. From volunteering to leading, his 12-year association with The Center has been transformative.

With an impressive background in leadership, project management, and diverse industries, Brian's decision to leave the corporate arena to join The Center underlines his commitment to community welfare. As he hangs his boots, his legacy remains: a sustainable future for The Center and unwavering support for the LGBTQ+ community.

In conclusion, the power of dedicated individuals and organizations like Julian High, Lexicon Bank, Julie Cameron-Doe, and Brian Hosier is evidence of how persistence, passion, and dedication can create impactful changes. Their stories serve as a beacon of hope and a roadmap for others wishing to make a difference.

The Center's Annual Gala

September 29th, 2023

Please join us for a celebration in the fabulous Encore Ballroom at Wynn Resorts as we honor outstanding community leaders and share The Center's remarkable progress and impact. The 2023 Honorarium will be an event to remember as The Center also celebrates its 30th Anniversary serving the community.

The Center is excited to announce that NFL Veteran Carl Nassib, who became the first openly gay active player in the NFL, will be joining us at the Honorarium 2023.

Julian High: A Pioneering Advocate for Change in Southern Nevada

Born and raised in the heart of Southern Nevada, Julian High has always been a trailblazer, from his early days in the gaming industry to his current role as President & CEO of United Way of Southern Nevada.

Julian's legacy of breaking boundaries began when he was appointed the Director of Community and Government Affairs for Sahara Gaming Corporation. In taking up this mantle, he became the first African American to secure such a significant position in the gaming world. This achievement was just the onset of Julian's mission to fuse philanthropic ventures with community needs.

Fueled by an unwavering commitment to service, Julian headed to the East Coast to pioneer national communication campaigns at National Industries for the Blind, aiming to boost employment opportunities. Later, he further solidified his reputation as an advocate for equity when he assumed the role of Director of Diversity and Inclusion and Human Resources at the Human Rights Campaign. Here, Julian ardently campaigned for the rights and representation of the LGBTQ+ community, earning widespread accolades for his leadership in promoting diversity, equity, and inclusion.

Drawing from these experiences, Julian founded J3H Platinum, an executive management consultancy. With it, he equipped top-tier executives to craft powerful communication, business, and political strategies, all while nurturing team resilience and cohesion.

However, the allure of his hometown proved irresistible. Julian, accompanied by his husband, Michael Vaughn, made a heartfelt return to Las Vegas. The memories of growing up in the Westside neighborhood of Regal Estates drove Julian's fervent pursuit to bridge local communities with vital resources, making sure everyone had a fair shot at prosperity.

The Center is proud to confer upon Julian the esteemed Lanny D. Love Hero Award. From his innovative role in casino marketing to his influential presence in the Human Rights Campaign, and his entrepreneurial journey with J3H Platinum, Julian High's tireless efforts have consistently aimed for a more inclusive, understanding, and nurturing society, both within Nevada and beyond.

LEXICON BANK

Lexicon Bank Honored as 'Organization of the Year' by The Center

In a celebratory nod to the champions of community support, The Center proudly announces Lexicon Bank as its 'Organization of the Year'. This distinction recognizes the bank's outstanding service as a dedicated financial partner to The Center and its steadfast commitment to the LGBTQIA+ community at large.

Led by the dynamic duo of Russell Rosenblum and Stacy Watkins, Lexicon Bank has proven to be an anchor of strength, especially during the most tumultuous times The Center has faced. Their collaborative approach and undeterred support played a pivotal role when The Center confronted multifaceted challenges. Through it all, Lexicon Bank's determined efforts ensured the organization's stability, guaranteeing its positive impact on the community.

Russell Rosenblum wears multiple hats, serving as the Chairman of the Board of Directors for Lexicon Bank. His entrepreneurial spirit has led to the establishment of several companies, including PCI Communications in 1989 and World Web LTD in 1994, making its mark as one of Washington, DC's pioneering ISPs and web developers. A law graduate from American University's Washington College of Law in 2000, Rosenblum ventured into legal representation for startups and later the title industry. His diverse business portfolio also includes being a prominent franchisee for Five Guys Burgers, holding the rights to the brand in Nevada. Furthermore, the Rosenblum Family Foundation, organized alongside his wife Anne Mazzola, exemplifies his commitment to philanthropy, especially within the Las Vegas region.

On the other hand, as President & CEO of Lexicon Bank, Stacy Watkins brings a holistic approach to her role. She masterfully oversees various bank functions from client services and operations to commercial lending initiatives. Her leadership also extends to fostering significant business and community ties, ensuring Lexicon Bank remains rooted in its commitment to the community.

Beyond her corporate avatar, Watkins is a beacon of service in the Southern Nevada region. Her dedication to economic progress and financial literacy sees her actively involved with numerous nonprofit organizations. Notably, her roles with Junior Achievement of Southern Nevada, the Vegas Chamber Executive Women's Council, and her recent appointment to the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco's Community Depository Institutions Advisory Council (CDIAC) underline her passion and dedication to her community.

It's partnerships like these that build resilient communities and pave the way for a brighter future for all.

A portrait of Julie Cameron-Doe, a woman with dark, wavy hair, wearing a light-colored, textured sweater over a grey skirt. She is smiling and has her arms crossed.

Julie Cameron-Doe: Championing Inclusivity and Empowerment

Julie Cameron-Doe's affiliation with The Center blossomed after her appointment as Chief Financial Officer at Wynn Resorts. However, it wasn't just her professional role that tethered her to The Center's mission; it was the passionate involvement of her 14-year-old daughter, Clara. The duo, over time, has immersed themselves in numerous programs The Center offers, standing as pillars of support for its cause.

Originating from the English shores, Julie pursued her academic aspirations at the University of Durham, where she secured her bachelor's degree. Her expertise and proficiency in finance earned her the esteemed title of a Fellow at the Institute of Chartered Accountants in England & Wales.

The broad expanse of Julie's career has seen her footprints in various global financial hubs. From the bustling streets of London to the romantic alleys of Paris and the dynamic vibes of Sydney, Julie's career has been as diverse as her experiences. Her journey took a significant turn in 2018 when she relocated to the neon-lit city of Las Vegas. Here, she first undertook the role of CFO at Aristocrat Leisure, a notable Australian gaming supplier, before her significant move to Wynn.

This year, Julie is being celebrated as the "Person of the Year", a testament to her unwavering support and advocacy for the LGBTQIA+ community. It's her profound commitment to fostering equality that echoes the very essence of The Center's values. Julie's tenure at Wynn Resorts, a brand synonymous with embracing diversity, not only reinforces her personal principles but also lights the way for others in the hospitality sector.

Our Mission

The LGBTQIA+ Center serves as a haven for all. We welcome and celebrate the diversity of our communities and strive to empower all to live authentic lives.

A portrait of Brian Hosier, a man with short grey hair and glasses, wearing a light blue button-down shirt. He is smiling and has his arms crossed.

Brian Hosier: Person of the Year

Brian Hosier has held the position of Chief Operating Officer at The Center since March 2021. As he transitions to retirement, his impactful leadership, especially during tumultuous times, stands as a testament to his dedication. A driving force behind the introduction of The Center's new pharmacy, Brian also spearheaded programs to expand access to crucial medications within the community. His leadership strategies not only fortified The Center's enduring viability but also amplified its reach to an unparalleled extent across Southern Nevada. Brian's journey with The Center spans over a decade, transitioning from a volunteer to a pivotal member of its Board of Directors, and even serving as the Governing Board Chair before moving into an operational role. His genuine desire to contribute to the community is what drew him away from the corporate realm to The Center.

With over three and a half decades of escalating leadership and problem-solving roles, Brian stands out as a proactive and goal-driven executive. A certified Project Management Professional (PMP), he has held distinguished roles in sectors like Healthcare, Gaming, and Finance. Recognized for his knack in innovating and streamlining operations, he's been pivotal in enhancing operational efficiency, boosting revenues, and lifting performance levels.

An alumnus of Ball State University, Brian has been a proud resident of Southern Nevada since 2005 and currently calls Henderson his home. Outside his professional realm, he cherishes traveling and spending cherished moments with his spouse, Romeo, and their beloved pets.

Since his initial days at The Center, Brian's vision was crystal clear: to cement the institution's lasting presence, ensuring it remains a haven for the LGBTQ+ community for generations. His tenure leaves an enduring legacy, etching a permanent positive impact on The Center's trajectory.

Queer Connections

From the world of sports to the political arena, the LGBTQ+ community is making waves and breaking barriers. This week, we've witnessed significant milestones that mark a remarkable progress for inclusivity and representation.

Gus Kenworthy Opens Up on Body Image and Acting

Olympian-turned-actor Gus Kenworthy, in an exclusive with Attitude magazine, delved deep into his personal journey with body image. While many may perceive him as having the 'perfect body', he confessed to struggles with body dysmorphia, a sentiment he believes resonates with many in the gay community. Kenworthy touched upon the pressure of maintaining a curated image on platforms like Instagram, which can often create a distorted version of reality.

Beyond the realm of body image, the athlete and actor also addressed his stance on queer roles in Hollywood. Emphasizing the importance of representation, Kenworthy said, "If they're telling our stories, they should use our perspectives." His refreshing candor on these subjects underscores the importance of authentic representation and dialogue about body image issues.

Pete Buttigieg's Athletic Feat Sparks Presidential Hopes

Transportation Secretary Pete Buttigieg showcased his physical prowess by completing the demanding IRONMAN 70.3 triathlon. The achievement is remarkable, involving a 1.2-mile swim, a 56-mile bike ride, and a 13.1-mile run. As photos and videos of a triumphant Buttigieg at the finish line flooded social media, the internet erupted in admiration and speculation. Could this show of stamina hint at a future presidential run?

Buttigieg's husband, Chasten, took to social media to share the heartwarming moment, attracting waves of congratulatory messages. Many supporters, awe-inspired by Buttigieg's fitness, posited that he could very well be the fittest presidential candidate in history. Between jests about other politicians and outright endorsements, the overarching sentiment was clear: Buttigieg has a bright political future ahead.

A Historic Win in Nashville's Metro Council

The political sphere was further illuminated by Olivia Hill's election to the Metro Nashville Council, making her the first openly transgender person to secure such a position in Nashville. This victory also made her the first transgender woman to be elected in the entire state of Tennessee, as per the LGBTQ+ Victory Fund.

Hill's win contributes to a paradigm shift in the Council's gender composition: women will now hold a majority with 22 out of the 40 seats. Speaking on her victory, Hill expressed her hope for every transgender individual in Tennessee, emphasizing their validity and the importance of moving forward.

Before this election, Hill had already made history as the first openly trans woman to be featured on a Tennessee ballot. As a Nashville native, her journey includes serving in the U.S. Navy, experiencing combat during Desert Storm, and working at the Vanderbilt University Power Plant.

Throughout her career and her gender transition, Hill faced challenges, including workplace discrimination, which she actively fought against. Recognized for her advocacy, she has received several awards, including the Chancellor's Heart and Soul award from Vanderbilt University.

Hill's vision for Nashville emphasizes a refocused approach on its citizens, underlining the importance of improving infrastructure, utilities, and public transportation. As she rightly states, it's time for leaders to "listen more and talk less."

Each of these stories underscores the breadth and depth of LGBTQ+ achievements and challenges. Whether it's navigating the pressures of body image, showcasing physical stamina, or breaking barriers in political representation, these narratives remind us of the resilience, strength, and promise of the LGBTQ+ community. They serve as a beacon of hope and inspiration, emphasizing the importance of authenticity, representation, and the

ABANDON,

The frightening new theatrical experience

Opening at Vegas Theatre Company in October, a portion of all proceeds from tickets sold to performances on Friday, October 13, 2023 will be donated to The Center

"The Marquis de Sade is considered by LGBTQ+ scholars to be one of the first authors to write about homosexuality as being as 'normal' as heterosexuality, long before Oscar Wilde's time," said Jana Wimer, ABANDON co-writer and director. "The ABANDON cast has several remarkable members of the LGBTQ+ community and it's truly an honor to work alongside an amazing organization such as The Center to help empower the community and further promote inclusion for all."
