a note from our EDITOR

Who is sexy and they know it? QVegas' "Sexiest of Gay Vegas" received thousands of Votes this year and what fun it was tallying the entries – The question everyone really wants to know is did Brandon Michael Kamohai Johnson of Charlie's Las Vegas win? Turn the pages to see the results.

My first red dress event was last year and it was hella fun! For you boys who just can't seem to break free of the testosterone and don't want to put on a dress, I say get over it! The Sin City Sisters Red Dress Event is about more than showing up in a red dress – it's about supporting a community and raising funds for our friends infected with AIDS who cannot afford the costly medication. On February 25, forget about wearing a red dress instead, wear a red costume (but it has to look like a dress or you will get spanked) and come party with us. Scan the code on the event ad and purchase your tickets. See you at the VIP party!

Share Nightclub grand opening is March 3 and gay owner, Mike Crisp have invited Adam Bouska and Jeff Parshley to "Share the Equality" and are paying for the fist 100 people that night to get their photograph taken for the NOH8 campaign. Golden Rainbow will take stage later in the evening promoting this years Ribbon of Life and many of the "Strip" shows will be walking the red carpet in support of Marriage Equality to receive their NOH8 photograph.

QVegas now has our very own Fashion & Style Director - please welcome to the staff Troy Patrino who will be bringing to you each month the latest fashion and style trends in our brand new departments QStyle and QTrends.

LGBT relationships are never easy and even more so since we are treated with ignorance and inequality in our country so this February stand up for love and write to your congress person and senator and tell them to repeal Defense of Marriage Act (DOMA).

INDIANA LAUNCHES GAY LICENSE PLATE

Indiana has launched a gay licence plate complete with rainbow logo aimed at young drivers. The state's Bureau of Motor Vehicles had originally turned down an application for the plate from the Indiana Youth Group, a gay, lesbian and transgender group for people aged 12 to 21. They claimed it did not have statewide appeal and said the group could not ensure profits from the sale of plates would not be used for salaries. You can read more about the story by Daniel Miller at www.dailymail.co.uk. ■

SPECIAL PANEL TO DECIDE WHERE TO HOUSE TRANSGENDER CONVICT

A gender identity committee will decide where a transgender woman with an extensive criminal record will be housed after she was sentenced this week to four years in prison on felony retail theft, battery and violation of probation charges, authorities said. Maribel Torres, identified in court records as Jose Torres, was sentenced Tuesday at the Skokie courthouse to four years in the Illinois Department of Corrections after pleading guilty to incidents in the women's departments of stores in Skokie and Deerfield. ■

MAYORS UNITE FOR MARRIAGE EQUALITY

Dozens of mayors unite for marriage equality, pledging support for gay and lesbian couples. Mayors of some of the largest cities join together to support the freedom to marry. The coalition officially launched Jan. 20th at a press conference at the 80th annual U.S. Conference of Mayors in Washington D.C. Participants included: Mayor Antonio R. Villaraigosa of Los Angeles; Mayor Jerry Sanders of San Diego; Mayor Thomas M. Menino of Boston; Mayor Annise Parker of Houston; Mayor Marilyn Strickland of Tacoma; Marc Solomon, our National Campaign Director here at Freedom to Marry; and Tom Cochran, U.S. Conference of Mayors CEO and Executive Director. (Visit freedomtomarry.org for a full list of participants.) Marc Solomon, National Campaign Director for Freedom to Marry released this statement:

"We're launching this effort at a time when more Americans than ever support the freedom to marry. When New York ended its exclusion of gay couples from marriage this summer, the number of people living in states that treat all committed couples equally more than doubled—from 16 million to 35 million Americans. Marriage is on the march in towns and cities across the nation and these mayors will play an important role in advancing the cause."

BAYORD RUSTIN:

Gay. Black. American Hero By Derek Washington

As we honor Reverend Martin Luther King for the historic changes he helped make in our great land, we must not forget that the LGBT community also had a huge role in the civil rights movement. This is the story of one of us and his influence on me. As the crowd massed and cheered on the grass of Washington DC so very many years ago demanding full equality for Negroes, one face amongst the dozens onstage congratulating themselves was missing.

I'd like to tell you about the man behind the face, Bayard Rustin.

My hero.

Long before Rosa Parks was arrested for not sitting in the back of the bus, Bayard had already been arrested and beaten in Louisville in 1942 for the very same act of bravery. Already this young man raised as a both an African Methodist and Quaker from a small Pennsylvania town seemed to be hell bent on changing this country and the world around him.

HARD ROCK CAFE: "ROCK THE CAUSE" IN 2012

In the spirit of their motto of "Take Time to Be Kind", both Hard Rock Cafe locations in Las Vegas are starting a year-long program called "Rock the Cause." The cafes will choose a specific cause each month and activate by doing volunteer work, raising funds or collecting items for different charitable organizations throughout Las Vegas and Southern Nevada.

Each month's activities will surround one particular charitable initiative. Activities will take place at both Hard Rock Cafe locations in Las Vegas as well as in the community over the course of the entire month. The activities will not be limited to one particular charity each month but will, in many cases, do their best to achieve help and change over a variety of initiative related charities.

FUTURE SOUND

The thump of a hard bass line-smooth electro and vibrant tones ricochets from the speakers and onto the walls permeating through your entire body when you walk into the KUNV studio (4505 Maryland Parkway) where Dj Chad Martinez and Dj Jonny Vibe are preparing to go live on the air with music that transcends far beyond the common title of, "techno" and into the realm of futuristic funk.

"Our show is the touchstone for people who love techno music- music that's for your head and not just for your feet," says Martinez. "It's a platform for underexposed - new music and local artists."

A partnership spawned from Downtown's First Friday event back in 2003, Jonny Vibe (Jonathan Licht), DJ, producer and remixer who practices the near extinct and sacred art of vinyl presentation - a product of West Bend with a razor sharp knowledge of "techno" and Martinez, creator of future sound, former technical director and current UNLV student and on-air host, formed a show featuring the sounds of such legends as Coil, Jeff Mills and Amon Tobin down to what you here in local clubs.

"This show is great way to share the music we love and give our audience a great listening experience," says Vibe."

The Future Sound radio show features live performances from the shows hosts and a barrage of local performance artists , namely, Human Experience, brain child of local resident DJ at Mix, Miss Joy and Jeffrey Bennington Grindley putting passionate poets to work on the mics as well as discussing community projects, donation worthy causes and where to find the best entertainment in the city.

Human experience can be heard on the show and hold live events at the Beat coffee house (520 Fremont st.) open mic from 7-10pm every Monday night with an after party to follow at insert coins.

Being a Guest on future sound can not only lead not becoming part of a growing family of artists, but may just land you in the big time.

Featured artist from the Future Sound show, Glenn A.D., founder of Production One from Chicago paid his dues and is now bringing talent from across the country to Vegas to perform.

Another alumni of FS is Soul Kitchen creator DJ Edgar Reyes- which features the performer at the Vanguard on Fremont- with the occasional guest appearances by the future sound crew for events is now taking the techno revolution across the nation.

Future sound started from the eclectic mind of a visionary (Martinez) seeing that to build community - you have to get involved in the community- and Vibe, whose talent and love of all things funkified have created a home where the willing are able to show Vegas what they have to share- mind, body and soul.

You can catch the future sound show every Friday and Saturday night on 91.5 KUNV from 12 to 2 a.m.

A WRITER AN ACTOR AND A DANCER

He's more than just a pretty face...

OUR COVER MODEL michael O'NEAL

photography by Gerry Garcia

on location at the new Tropicana Las Vegas

SO WE HAVE TO ASK, HOW OFTEN DO YOU WORKOUT?

I get to the gym about 3-5 times a week at least for an hour a day and hit the weights hard. But you're going to hate me when I tell you this—I haven't worked out in over two weeks because I've been so busy with work (laughs)

YOU'RE RIGHT; WE HATE YOU (JUST KIDDING!). WHAT KIND OF WORK DO YOU DO?

I'm an actor here in Vegas and in LA & I'm making the permanent transition to LA as we speak. I train at IndieSOS & I'm managed by Talent Management Int. Right now, I'm cast as the lead in two films—one a romantic comedy, the other a supernatural thriller—and the lead in a live theatre show to be performed in Hollywood sometime around late Spring/Summer. I have more films coming up that I've already been cast in as either a lead or principal, all the way through the summer of 2012. So be on the lookout for me when they premiere!

WOW! YOU DO SOUND BUSY.

I also write horror and speculative fiction for magazines & anthologies and I'm the fiction editor for Dark Moon Digest. Last year I had over a dozen stories published in publications internationally and at home. Hopefully I'll have a full fledged novel published in the next year or two... that is, if my literary agent does their job, ha! On the side, I do commercial work across the country and fitness modeling.

WHAT DO YOU DO FOR FUN?

My work (laughs)! I'm fortunate enough to have a career that is also my hobby, so everyday, no matter how long or tough, is still a fun day. But I also love to go out on the town now and then and start some hell-raising. I've definitely been known to party when the time's right!

CAN WE SEE YOU PERFORM ANYWHERE IN TOWN?

When I'm in Vegas, I dance both at SHARE nightclub on Friday & Saturday nights & at REVOLUTION in the Mirage on Sunday nights throughout the year. You can see me there around midnight until late. Another fun job!

HAVE YOU LIVED IN VEGAS ALL YOUR LIFE?

No, I'm originally from Tennessee. Yes, I'm a country boy at heart. I moved out here to be closer to work. But I think my old state has some of the most beautiful countrysides and forests you've ever seen. During the summertime it looks like Eden.

HOW'S YOUR LOVE LIFE?

Private. (laughs) I don't kiss and tell. I'll only say this: it's good.

OKAY, ONE FINAL QUESTION, THEN WE'LL JUST HAVE TO STAY CONTENT STARING AT YOUR PICTURES: BOXERS OR BRIEFS?

Everyone always asks that question in interviews, don't they? And always only two choices? How limited (laugh). I'm going to leave that answer to the reader's imagination... ■

project RED DRESS

SIN SITY SISTERS: PROJECT RED DRESS

The Sin Sity Sisters of Perpetual Indulgence are a leading HIV/AIDS organization in the Las Vegas valley. Every year they hold their Red Dress event to raise much needed funds for the programs they offer to those in the community living with HIV/AIDS. You may be asking why a red dress? The answer is simple, by wearing a red dress you show your support for those in the community affected by this disease. This year's event is going to be held at the World Market Center on Saturday February 25th, starting at 8:00pm. Tickets will cost $50 (VIP pre party at 8:00pm and main event) and $30 (main event only - starting at 9:00pm). ANIMAL FOUNDATION: STAR'S NEW BROTHER

Star, QVegas mascot has a new brother named Sunny. Kelsi Washington was afraid her poodle dachshund mix would be lonely while she was deployed to Afghanistan with the 422nd Signal battalion but her girlfriend Noah Henderson, QVegas webmaster promised Kelsi she would look after Star while she was deployed and when she returned together they would find Star a new brother at The Animal Foundation. Kelsi returned home from her deployment mid-January and as promised they made a visit to the Animal Foundation to find Star a brother. Noah knew as soon as Sunny gave her a "high 5" through the cage that Sunny was going to fit into the family just perfect, "I felt the vibe as soon as he put his paw through the cage," said Noah Henderson and Star has approved of the new purring addition to the household. Star is missed at the QVegas offices but she likes being at home playing with Sunny. Welcome home Kelsi and thank you for your service to our country. To adopt or donate visit QVegas.com homepage for a link to the Animal Foundation and remember "Don't Shop, Adopt" there are plenty of designer dogs looking for homes at the Animal Foundation. ■

2 STEPS FORWARD...

New Jersey voters support 52 - 42 percent allowing same-sex couples to marry, the first time support tops 50 percent. There is a strong divide between those who attend religious services weekly and those who attend less frequently, according to a Quinnipiac University poll.

Mayor Jerry Sanders goes to Washington launch "Mayors for Freedom to Marry." Sanders and Boston Mayor Thomas Menino announce the campaign to "end marriage discrimination." Joining the campaign: mayors from some 70 U.S. cities.

More than 3,000 Granite Staters and 100,000 people across the country have joined a popular campaign on Change.org started by a conservative Iraq veteran urging the New Hampshire state legislature to defend the freedom to marry for all couples.

The gay advocacy group, "One Iowa" is starting a new campaign to sway public opinion in favor of same-sex marriages. Not three years after the Iowa Supreme Court ruling made it legal for same-sex couples to marry in Iowa, polls still show a majority of Iowans oppose the decision.

1 STEP ... BACK

Gov. Chris Christie has been clear on his view of "not supporting same-sex marriage" but is now backing away from a promise to veto any bill and will see what public input says on the tradition of marriage before he decides.

American Family Association spokes hater Bryan Fischer told his listeners that God might heal those suffering from AIDS if they would just stop shooting up, having promiscuous sex with strangers, and inhaling poppers.

John & Ken Show, a radio duo's on-air discussion of the Golden Globe Awards has sparked the ire of a number of (LGBT) media outlets after the pair implied that gay entertainment honchos prefer casting women with bodies "that mind them of a 14-year-old boy."

Nebraska state senator Beau McCoy introduces law attacking gay rights ordinances throughout Nebraska and it will void Lincoln Law and block an attempt in Omaha to protect gays.

Bright colors are most often associated with summer fashion. But in between all of fall's black & camel, and the grey & beige that dominated the Spring 2012 menswear shows, designers showed pops in bold tones that can punch up your winter wardrobe right now: cobalt and a twist of lime at Calvin Klein Collection, bold orange at Bottega Veneta and Michael Bastian, and a parade of yellow, blue, red, and green at D&G.

Pair a bright stripe with a dark denim jean, or trade your black cashmere for a sunnier shade as a partner for tailored grey trousers. When putting the pop in your pants, keep it neutral up top with a thermal. Even your kicks can kick it up a notch. Whether you are painting the town, or just hanging around, these brights are sure to give your winter look—and spirits—a boost.

What's SEXY?

by Charles Béraud

What's Sexy?

Yep, that's the question that I've been pondering for a little over three weeks now since finding out what the February issue would be devoted to: Sexy Las Vegas! So as I do for most things that are foreign to me, I turn to Merriam-Webster:

Sexy (adjective)

1. sexually suggestive or stimulating or;
2. generally attractive or interesting.

Now the second definition kicks this whole thing wide open, does it not? I mean, if the definition of sexy includes something that's "generally interesting", then the carpet in my office would qualify as sexy – though I've never come across a sexy rug – or comb-over.

If this article doubled as a "sexual definition" drinking game, you'd be heading into your sixth shot by now. Trust me; it will make these next six hundred words way more interesting!

I'm writing this while watching the Golden Globes on television – and one would argue the bevy of bronzed beauties along the red carpet provide ample living examples of sexy. But plucked, tucked, tanned and primped within an inch of their lives... perfection, or the perception of perfection, is not sexy. No one is ever this well-lit in their everyday lives. The mechanics of sexy are there, like ingredients of a movie designed to make you cry your eyes out – stellar cast, sweeping score, slow-motion montage, scenery-chewing yet transformative performances and tortured soliloquies, etc. But when all is said and done, just as you feel manipulated to tears, these unattainable standards of sexy make the whole enterprise a little unsexy to me. I'm always amused when People Magazine declares so-and-so the "sexiest man alive". I mean, really! By whose standards, and how is that measured? And implying that so-and-so is the sexiest man alive; does that mean that the previous titleholder is no longer the sexiest...or no longer alive?

So what's sexy? Well anyone who would answer him/her-self to this question is automatically unsexy. It's one thing to know that you're sexy. There's nothing off-putting with candidly admitting that you find certain things about you sexy. I for one am very fond of the second toe on my left foot. The way it curls shyly under the big one is quite adorable. It's an altogether different story to say "I Am Sexy". Or maybe it's just me. Do you remember that ABC show in 2003: Are You Hot? Was there ever a greater display of unattractive narcissism? Yeah, that show where seemingly dim people subjected themselves to the subjective criticism of Rachel Hunter, Randolph Duke, and Lorenzo Lamas – along with his laser pointer, all up for consideration on the sole criterion of their physical attractiveness. It made the Miss America Pageant seem like a MENSA convention. It made me wonder if – standing there scantily clad for all to dissect and objectify – they felt sexy. Anyone who's ever wandered along the strip on any given weekend can see the many permutations of "sexy" with widely varying results.

I don't think there are moments in my life that I've felt sillier than when I tried to be sexy. In the words of Colin Firth, "that's just gruesome". In my not-so-capable hands, the trappings of what's considered by many to be sexy come off as awkward and self-conscious. It has nothing to do with my usual self-deprecation, and perhaps a little too much to do with my sense of self-awareness. It might have to do with the fact that I don't have the first clue of

by Richard Davis

SHARE Nightclub and Ultra Lounge, Las Vegas' newest gay hot spot is celebrating their official grand opening on Saturday, March 3rd with a star-studded red carpet of celebrities from Las Vegas and afar, including Angel Porrino, Josh Strickland and Laura Croft from E!'s TV hit "Holly's World," Penn and Teller, Josh Flagg and Madison Hildebrand with Bravo's "Million Dollar Listing," and Jai Rodriguez with Bravo's "Queer Eye for the Straight Guy." A cadre of national and international journalists is flying in to cover the event. Marketing guru, Eduardo Cordova, familiar to the Las Vegas club scene, says SHARE's real opening night stars will be Las Vegas locals, "Locals are the trendsetters in Las Vegas. They decide if a place is hot. Out-of-towners follow their lead."

SHARE knows locals with ample free self-parking or complimentary valet parking and upscale accessibility. SHARE owner and Las Vegas local Michael Crisp told QVegas, "Remember when Vegas had the reputation for courtesy, respect and great customer service? We're bringing that back at SHARE."

Celebrity photographer Adam Bouska and his partner Jeff Parshley from the NOH8 Campaign will "Share the Equality" and make you feel like a star as they photograph grand opening guests and celebrities for their now iconic marriage equality images. Beginning at 9:00 p.m. the first 100 guests will receive complimentary photos courtesy of SHARE, but the shoot will continue until 11:00 p.m. with your tax-deductible $20 contribution going towards the NOH8 Campaign. Afterwards, sparkling stars from many Vegas shows will walk the red carpet and strike their own pose for NOH8.

“SHARE is the only gay nightclub in Las Vegas with an adult entertainment license and VIP booths for private dancing upstairs in the ultra lounge.”

"SHARE has raised the bar for premier nightlife, gay or straight, in Las Vegas," Eduardo Cordova says. SHARE plans for a surprise celebrity VIP host to emcee the grand opening which will feature a performance by a special celebrity guest star. Out singer and NOH8 supporter Lance Bass says SHARE's grand opening, "will be a night of celebration for great LGBT community causes." Cordova says Las Vegas celebs will be sharing their support for the LGBT community.

Also for SHARE's grand opening guests, local HIV/AIDS non-profit Golden Rainbow will be presenting an exclusive sneak peak of its new "Ribbon of Life" show scheduled to open on June 24 at The Smith Center, Las Vegas' new world-class performing arts center set to open in March. The 30-minute preview for the SHARE grand opening will be a sexy reveal along the lines of "Broadway Bares."

"SHARE has the hottest staff in Las Vegas," Cordova says, and promises you'll be impressed by their friendly service as much as by their Diesel skivvies. SHARE is the only gay nightclub in Las Vegas with an adult entertainment license and VIP booths for private dancing upstairs in the ultra lounge. Guests can get a little more personal with SHARE's sexy go-go boys than merely leaving a big tip, Cordova says.

The $7 million stand-alone club is divided into SHARE Nightclub downstairs and the Ultra Lounge up. The nightclub's unique dance floor has plenty of space to party while providing a friendly intimacy. Cabanas with sheer drapes keep you in the party while allowing for little more intimacy. Upstairs guests can enjoy the luxurious modern Vegas retro privacy of the Ultra Lounge and bar and VIP private booths. Ask a shot boy how he can make your experience a little more "sharable."

SHARE has something for you every night of the week with Happy Hours and daily specials. Cordova suggests you to stop off after work with a friend for two-for-one cocktails in the Ultra Lounge on Wednesday evenings. Tuesdays is Karaoke Night for those who need to channel their inner Lady Gaga and Thursdays is Drag Night with star drag performers from across the country. Eduardo Cordova says the "sweetest night in Las Vegas," will be Sugar Fridays at SHARE. "What's your flavor of boy?" he asks. "Sugar is going to be Charlie and the Chocolate Factory meets Candyland meets Alice in Wonderland. Definitely expect the unexpected." Cordova says, "Sugar is pop night at SHARE. It will be all about Top 40 and pop remixes." Cordova invites you to "SHARE your Saturday" and see and hear great headline performers and music from top international DJs." He says, "SHARE is all about the music." SHARE the experience online at www.ShareNightclub.com. ■

The repeal of Don't Ask, Don't Tell: Just in time for a soldier's homecoming kiss.

Spc. Kelsi Washington (left) with girlfriend of QVegas, Noah Henderson at demobilization ceremony of the 422nd Nevada Signal Battalion

January 15th
2012

Spc. Kelsi Washington and Noah Henderson residents of Las Vegas reunited during the demobilization ceremony of the 422nd Expeditionary Signal Battalion at the Mandalay

Bay Resort Casino and hotel. The couple reunited with tears, hugs, and kisses following a 12 month deployment to Kandahar Afghanistan. Members of the 422nd ESB successfully completed its year-long mission in support of Operations Enduring Freedom. Kelsi was apart of the largest Nevada Guard signal corps to deploy. Just over 400 soldiers returned to nearly 1,000 family members. Governor Sandoval and other dignitaries of Nevada spoke to welcome the troops home. The pair sat down with Q for the following interview:

QVEGAS: How did you cope with your spouse being gone for 12 months?

NOAH: Honestly, the hardest part for me was right before she left and right before she returned, I was so anxious. But to deal with the time in between: I had friends visit from the east coast at least once every other month and I traveled back to Philadelphia every 3 months and I certainly worked a lot. One of my jobs was as a yoga-spanish-ASL-art teacher at a Montessori school.

Q: While your partner was deployed, what experiences did you go through that you wish your partner was around for. How did you get through it without her?

N: When it comes to bugs, Kelsi is much braver than me. While staying in the apartment one of the neighbors had an overwhelming bug problem that spread to our unit. I toughed it out and collected dead specimens in a ziploc bag with rubber gloves and took it to the property manager and moved out of the apartment.

Q: Can you share any stories or experiences that you had to go through to remain in the closet while serving?

Kelsi: I was in a group setting where people were talking bad about gay people. I felt bad because I couldn't take up for my community because I felt like if I would have said something it would have lead to me being outted.

My Hero.

The previous year, Rustin, A. Phillip Randolph and A.J. Muste planned a massive march on Washington to protest the unequal treatment of Negroes and the insidious discrimination against them in the armed forces. They did not ask President Roosevelt if they could do this. They TOLD the POTUS that they were going to do this. With Roosevelt needing every hand on deck for the fight against the Axis powers, he issued Executive order 8802 which ended discrimination in defense industries and federal agencies.

My Hero.

As one of the founders of CORE the Congress of Racial Equality, Bayard began a lifelong interest in and study of the non violent teachings of Mahatma Gandhi. As a pacifist, he was jailed during World War 2. While in jail he organized mass protests against the segregated dining facilities for prisoners and a Free India committee.

My Hero

After the war, in 1947 he organized the Journey of Reconciliation. This was the very first set of Freedom Rides. He trained 14 men of various colors to ride across the South together to force a test of the law against restriction of intrastate travel. He was opposed not only by the racist system of Jim Crow, but also by the good negroes of the NAACP who felt that he was pushing for too much too fast.

A young minister soon caught his eye for the work he was doing in Birmingham Alabama. This young man was our own American Gandhi he felt. He took the minister under his wing and trained him in the art of non violent resistance. This man was organizing the now historic Bus Boycotts we all know of. Due to threats against him, his home, his wife and his children they were defended by men with guns. Bayard Rustin convinced this minister that like Gandhi, violence must be met with non violent resistance. Guns had to be put away.

As we move forward a few years, thousands upon thousands of Americans joined that young Minister, Reverend Martin Luther King Jr. in Washington DC for the largest march this nation had ever seen in demand of full equality and Civil Rights for all of its citizens. One man was not on that stage.

My Hero.

He was a homosexual. And the powers that be decided he couldn't be there.

It wouldn't look good for the cause.

This man is my hero because he never let the bastards get him down. He never took no for an answer when he knew his cause was the right one. He never let white people tell him he was any less than them. He never sat down when he felt he had to stand up. He never quieted his outrage when others said be quiet.

He got louder.

He was openly Gay and never let that be a source of shame for himself. Even though he was arrested numerous times for being a Homosexual, he never hid in anyone's closet.

Another reason this man is my hero, my role model and my soul mate?

In the mid 60's after years of being a card carrying Communist.

He became a Democrat.

He urged the now BLACK community to get involved in politics. He knew and taught that the way to power and full equality was through the voting booth. Because of his leadership, others came on board and began leaving the Republican Party in droves.

I am here, a Black man, as the Leader of not one BUT TWO of the most politically influential LGBT organizations in the State of Nevada's history because of this brave man.

Because of him I have never taken the crap that the forces of discrimination have spewed at me or my communities.

Because of him I know that the ballot box is how we as a community reach the mountain top.

He taught me that being myself was only a problem for others, not me.

He showed me that I am SOMEBODY.

I am Gay.

I am Black.

I am SOMEBODY.

Thank you, Mr. Rustin. ■

Derek Washington

Q: Can you share any stories or experience you had to go through to protect your service member from being outted?

N: Attending military family events like the yellow ribbon or the company christmas parties made me nervous because I worried that I looked 'too' gay. I think most of her superiors knew we were together.

Q: What was it like right before DADT ended officially?

K: It seemed like everyone that I knew was gay was a little antsy about the repeal. Although, most gay members were already out to close friends within my unit.

Q: With DADT repealed and your return from Afghanistan how is it being out of the closet in the army?

K: There are some positives about being out, especially the fact that I no longer have to hide my partner or say that she is my "best friend".

Q: The repeal of DADT was only one step towards equality, what are other concerns that gay military families have?

K: While deployed, I feared that if anything happened to Noah, I wouldn't be granted Emergency Leave because she was not my legal spouse. If gay marriage was recognized in Federal law I would have the same rights as every other military family.

Q: For the spouses preparing for deployments what advice would you offer?

K: Phone calls are expensive but ways around high phone bills would be to use Google Talk, Skype and other social media. Also, stay busy with activities that you enjoy most. My favorite activity became reading.

N: If you can, travel. Spoil yourself, but don't spend all the money. Be alone when you want to be alone but try to be around friends and family. ■ awareness. It might have to do with the fact that I don't have the first clue of how to act "sexually suggestive". I find that the more you try to be "sexy", the less sex appeal you have, making the whole thing counterintuitive, wouldn't you say?

The more I ask, the more I realize the question is impossible to answer. Sexy is subjective. Like beauty, it's in the eye of the beholder. So it's not about what's sexy, but about what is sexy TO ME. I'm not going to act like those annoying people who claim that physical beauty is not important to them while they fantasize about the centerfold-next-door, download copious amounts of porn, and lurk in online chat rooms catering to muscle-bound gods of hedonism.

You drunk yet? Sexy!

It's funny how physical attractiveness can be drastically heightened or diminished by attitude. To me, intelligence and emotional availability are sexy! Generosity of spirit and a warped sense of humor are sexy. Self-awareness and self-reliance are not only hot, but when combined, the result is the most attractive form of self-esteem. It's such a turn-on when someone lives as well within themselves as they do with the outside world. Community engagement is so scorching! Human kindness is overwhelming.

So that's what's sexy to me. And the great thing about this unapologetically subjective, entirely unscientific concept of sexy is that each and every one of us is sexy to someone too. ■

EDITION

EVERY MONTH WE PICK A HANDFUL OF VEGAS LOCALS TO SHOWCASE AS OUR "PEEPS". THIS MONTH BEING FEBRUARY, IT SEEMED FITTING TO SHOWCASE A FEW LOVE STORIES.

STEVEN & CHRISTOPHER

“WE HAD AN INSTANT CONNECTION. HIS SMILE CAPTURED MY ATTENTION.”

-Christopher about Steven
(They have been together 2 years. They met at Closet Sundays at Revolution Lounge.)

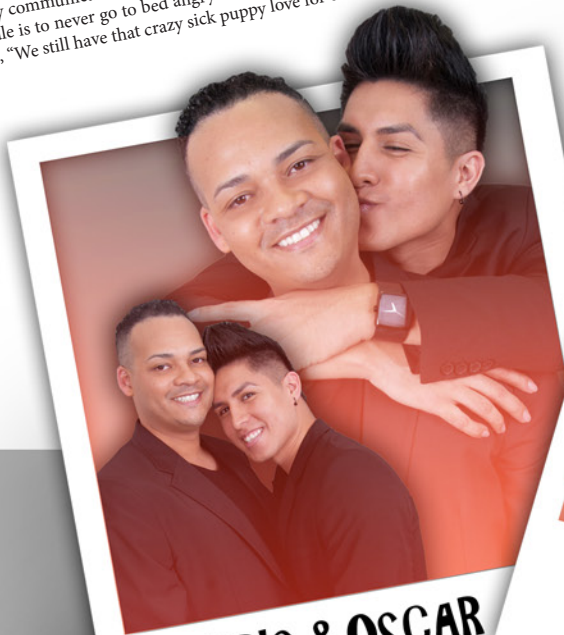

Mike Crisp and Kenny Jervis have been together since their initial meeting and destiny two and half years ago. What they love most about being a couple is the day-to-day communication and the little things in life that Kenny said, "Sum up to a grand total of really watching out for one another. I still love each time we get to be together and look forward to it like it was the first time."

Q Vegas asked what their favorite shared item was and here was the answer... "HMMM...Not sure I am able to answer that with a G rating but I would say, second favorite is our travel adventures about the globe and a true sense of knowing that through the struggles and triumphs life brings, we both know that "The Best Is Yet To Come" as we have lots of living to do together! Mike recently gave me a framed quote that says so much about our life as a couple, "We do not remember days...We remember MOMENTS" and it is nice to build a life of moments together."

Kenny & Mike

Chris and Oscar have been together for three years. They met through mutual friends when Oscar came to Las Vegas on vacation. They both work at, Oscar is the store manager at Inglot while Chris is a Realtor at Encore Realty Group, so they cherish every minute they have together - doing things like walking their 4 dogs or cooking delicious meals together. They say communication is the key to a good relationship, and their number one rule is to never go to bed angry with each other. 3 years later, as Oscar puts it, "We still have that crazy sick puppy love for each other."

CHRIS & OSCAR

They met when Dina (Dark hair) was a nurse providing community education about hospice and Dina (Dom) was a nurse case manager for a major insurance company. They became friends, then co-workers and started dating. They had a few challenges at first, however, the more time they spent together the stronger they were as a couple. We've worked together in same capacity or another since we met and now we've created Teazed Greeting Cards for the LGBT community, their families and friends to help them express their inner most thoughts and feelings. If you more info, please feel free to call or text~ 327-4309

DINA & DINA

SOPHIA & CRISTAL

Sophia & Cristal met 4 1/2 years ago through a mutual friend. Sophia owned a tanning salon at the time and Cristal came in one day and while sparks flew, they barely talked to each other. Later on Cristal found Sophia on MySpace the next day and said, "I need an air freshner, my car smells like my grandpa and 10 of his buddies went on a road trip." Sophia thought that was hilarious! They went to the auto store and ever since that day they have not gone one single day without seeing each other, even if it was for something as silly as an air freshner.

ROBERT & MARK

Mark met Robert 3 years ago at the Luxor Pool Party. After flirting with each other the entire time, Robert invited Mark out on his boat on Lake Mead, and they've been together ever since.

LAST WORD

"THE TAO OF LOVE"

By Jennifer Short

a transformational wellness, life and business coach.

I was asked to do "The Last Word" column for this issue of Q Vegas, with a strong reminder to remember my "audience." Regardless, it was obvious to me that my topic, for a February publication, had to be "love." Love is, as they say, "the universal language" and defies all demographic barriers. We all yearn to love and be loved.

Just in case you do need a bit more of a pride production, no worries. In addition to life coaching, I have over 20+ years experience with event management and entertainment booking. So sit back, relax and close your eyes. Please allow me to ignite the glitter cannons and launch the rainbow light show. Cue house music...drop disco ball...As we say in showbiz, "Work with me people!"

Let's face it - St. Valentine's Day is the PRIDE day of LOVE. It outs people everywhere in many ways. V-Day is an excuse to tell that special someone how you really feel about them, even if you've been keeping it close to your heart.

It also outs all you "Queens of D' Nile". Who is single and unhappy? V-Day begs the question, "Why am I still single?" Who feels stuck in a stagnant relationship? V-Day asks, "Why am I with this person?" How many of you are content with your current situation/relationship status?

If so, Cupid offers a chance to showcase your admiration. Valentine's Day is an opportunity if you haven't already been putting your love on display.

Well, boys (who do boys) and girls (who do girls), what scenario have I yet to address in my ramblings thus far? It is the main issue I find myself focused on with almost every coaching client I've encountered. It is the one Ms. Whitney Houston belted out in, "The Greatest Love of All." Self love. Keep your minds out of the gutter. I'm being serious here! Focus.

Self based love dates back thousands of years to Taoism. Taoists taught to focus on self first. From self you can then move to couple...family... community... world, etc. Focusing on and taking care of yourself is the highest good you can do on this planet. If this is a challenging concept to grasp, all I ask is that you take it in and work to create some space for it.

So my little "chick-e-dees", consider this your last call. Try something different this year. Instead of scouring the (metaphorical) club to find Mr. or Ms. "Right Now", I suggest you be content in going home un solo. In honor of this Valentine's Day, love yourself first! Then you can attract the right love into your life and take care of those who are already present.

This Valentine's, I suspect, at days end you will find me sprawled out, in the middle of my bed with just my pussy (cat).

Freedom, peace and love - my happily ever after.

May your special day be filled with celebration, joy and laughter.

The Tao of Love is this - "To thine own self be true."

This is the hidden secret. LOVE must begin with YOU!
