PUBLISHER'S NOTE

We hope that you are sticking to your New Years Resolutions and that you are feeling the love as we roll into February.

January was a very productive month for us. We rang in the new year, took QVegas all digital, danced with Tracy Young at Revolution, whore'd around with DJ Pornstar at the Hustlaball, went to the Sundance Film Festival, attended CES, and "Let it Go" with Josh Strickland and Norma Llyaman at Mondays Dark.

Since going all digital, we continue to see a dramatic increase in our web traffic and social media engagement, so thank for making us the number one gay website and magazine for Las Vegas.

This month we offer Valentine's Day suggestions for that special someone... alternatives if that someone isn't so special anymore (machine guns anyone?) and it's time to pull out the sewing machines because the Red Dress event benefiting the Sin City Sisters of Perpetual Indulgence arrives at the end of the month!

Love

This issue we thought we would focus on the message RuPaul promotes in Drag Race, "If you can't love yourself, how the hell you gonna love someone else?" We get to hang out with past season's contestants and introduce you to the new Season 7 Queens!

Sex

We get to experience some pretty interesting meetings and this month Jasmine Ejan, creator of Blowpaste lube, was a treat to talk to. Killian James gives us an insight to the business behind escorting and shows us that brains can be just as sexy as a six pack.

Vegas

What better way to represent Vegas, than the grand opening of Frank - The Man. The Music, celebrating the life and career of Frank Sinatra.

Isabelle & Lukas

Photographer: J and J Photography

Isabelle and Lukas' moms have known for years that they wanted to be parents, but being in a same-sex relationship they knew they had to explore their options to achieve this dream. When friends told them about their own experience at Red Rock Fertility Center and how the center helped them add to their family, the couple didn't hesitate to book an appointment. After meeting with Dr. Littman, they chose to pursue the intrauterine insemination (IUI) procedure, involving in vitro insemination from a random sperm donor. One of the moms underwent the procedure in February. On Valentine's Day, they received the happy call that the procedure worked. In September, one of the moms gave birth to a twin boy and girl. Congratulations to Isabelle, Lukas and their moms!

There's something a little odd about seeing the woman sitting in front of you in the theater taking a picture of Frank Sinatra on her iPhone.

My brain questioned how this was possible. The legendary performer passed away almost a decade before the iPhone was released. Combine that with the fact that you're sitting in the theater that sits in the same place where Frank recorded his first live album nearly 50 years before, and the lines between future and past start to blur. You think, "Is this really happening?"

It is. And it happens at The Palazzo Theatre. Located where the Copa Room was demolished in 1996 when the Sands Hotel was imploded, Bob Anderson takes the stage in "FRANK - The Man. The Music."

Accompanied by a live 32-piece orchestra, Anderson performs hits from The Great American Songbook, including, "Come Fly with Me," "One for my Baby," and "My Heart Stood Still," among many others.

"Playing this iconic legend is a humbling and monumental experience," said Anderson. "I want everything to be as close to reality as possible. The size and quality of the orchestra, the original arrangements, the set, the sound, the lighting, and everything else has to be exquisite."

When I first met Bob Anderson last Spring, he looked nothing like Frank Sinatra. But then I heard him sing and the sound was indistinguishable from Ol' Blue Eyes.

The next time I saw Bob, I had to do a double-take. The makeup and prosthetics created by Oscar®-nominated makeup artist Kazu Tsuji (who aged Brad Pitt in the movie "The Curious Case of Benjamin Button") magically transformed the face to match the voice of one of the most legendary performers of all time.

Music lovers of all generations will love the classic songs that pay homage to a Vegas lost many years ago.

But the show goes beyond the impression of Frank with the orchestra. Under the direction of Frank Sinatra's very own Vincent Falcone, along with several of Sinatra's band, there simply isn't an experience that can deliver the truly nostalgic sounds of this ensemble.

"This show will give generations of music lovers around the world a chance to leave this high-tech world behind and travel back to a time circa 1970 to experience an evening unlike any other today," said John Caparella, president & COO of The Venetian, The Palazzo, and Sands Expo. "For those who yearn for a sophisticated music experience at the site where the Rat Pack earned its fame, 'FRANK - The Man. The Music.' is the show to attend."

"FRANK - The Man. The Music." performs Tuesday through Saturday at The Palazzo Theatre.. Visit www.gay.vegas/frankthemusic for more info.

Mondays Dark Selects The Center for First Benefit of 2015

In a flurry of Disney tunes, over a dozen Las Vegas performers turned out to perform for Mondays Dark, a monthly charity event held at The Hard Rock Hotel & Casino. Each month Mark Shunock ("Lonny" in Rock of Ages at The Venetian), selects a different charity to support, with the January 2015 event benefiting The Center.

Opening the show was none other than Norma Llyaman decked out in a Bette Davis/Ursula the Sea Witch masterpiece, lipsyncing "Poor Unfortunate Souls" from The Little Mermaid.

Sandra Huntsman from Ghostlight and Mondays Dark regulars Philip Drennen and Jassan Allen belted out Beauty and the Beast. Always a staple to Mondays Dark, Rock of Ages cast members come out each month, with Brandon Nix performing Go The Distance, Tiffany Engen singing He's a Tramp, and Dierdre Lang and a cast of balloon animals raised the roof with Circle of Life.

Mark and his wife Cheryl Daro took the audience on a Magic Carpet Ride, and Showstoppers Nicole Kaplan, Andrew Ragone, and David Burnham brought a medley of songs.

This year, Halloween costumes, birthday parties, Christmas presents, and even Once Upon a Time have us on Elsa-Overload, but no one expected Josh Strickland to belt out "Let It Go" and bring down the house.

Mondays Dark takes the stage at Vinyl inside the Hard Rock Hotel & Casino the 3rd Monday of every month with an annual bash in December. The $20 ticket is the best deal in town for some amazing entertainment that gives back to local charities.

Gay.Vegas is proud to

With "Gay Marriage" comes "Gay Divorce," and Machine Guns Vegas is debuting its "Just Divorced" party package to help the newly single celebrate their independence. Bring those wedding memories and up to 4 guests in for target practice. Available starting this Valentine's Day, MGV's "Just Divorced" package encourages ex-spouses to celebrate their recent uncoupling and new beginning by taking aim at wedding items from years passed including (but not limited to) wedding dresses, tuxes, and marriage certificates with MGV's largest caliber-shot available.

"We're thrilled to put a positive spin on what can be a difficult and stressful time for people," said Genghis Cohen, owner of Machine Guns Vegas. "Our divorce party package aims to provide a therapeutic element with support from friends in family in the wake of what can be a truly sad event. Creating an activity out of laying wedding memorabilia to rest that would likely just collect dust or be painful reminders of if "till death do us part" doesn't really pan out can be therapeutic."

The "Just Divorced" experience is priced at $499 and includes:

- 40 rounds on a 1919 mounted belt-fed machine gun for the divorcee
- 10 rounds on a black or pink M4 or a for up to 4 additional party members
- Complimentary VIP Gun Lounge Upgrade with 2 private firing lanes & lounge (subject to availability)
- Complimentary transportation to and from Machine Guns Vegas

Revel In Revenge At Due & Proper With Voodoo Valentine Celebration

Revel in revenge this Valentine's Day at Due & Proper, located at the District at Green Valley Ranch, with Voodoo Valentine on Saturday, Feb. 14. For those who despise the romantic holiday, Due & Proper will leave the cards and flowers behind. Bitter ex-lovers will enjoy drink specials, voodoo doll giveaways and a free spin on the Wheel of Death, after bringing in a picture of an ex to shred. For those who may not want to shred their ex, the Wheel of Death, specially priced at $8, will invite partygoers to take their chance on free drinks and specialty shots throughout the evening.

Now That's Good Oral... Hygiene

[ by Jasmine Ejan ]

There's a penis in the sky! It's a sign!" I declared, pointing at the illuminated phallic-shaped cloud floating across the evening horizon. And then I danced around in glee looking at that cock-lit sky.

It was July 2013 and my indiego campaign to raise funds for Blowpaste (an edible lube that's vegan and good for your teeth, natch) had gotten the attention of the Huffington Post. I felt like a rockstar; my company, CheekyChaCha, was filling out orders from across the US, and Australia, France, Taiwan, and Japan. At that time, Blowpaste was about a half year in the making, and it was beyond exciting to see my original idea blowing up the internet.

I am no stranger to hard work, as I was a former ballerina and have a very disciplined work ethic, and with the help of my friends and mentors, Blowpaste grew from persistent little idea to this all encompassing new phase of my life. For months I spent countless hours researching and developing my concoction, talking to all kinds of people, learning about manufacturing, and honing my pitch. And when HuffPost came calling, I thought this was a natural progression for all of the hard work.

But along with the viral fame came many highs and lows. One unexpected low, which turned out to be a tremendous learning experience that I'm grateful for today, is that Blowpaste did not meet the in-store sales quota bound by the preliminary test period at Spencer's Gifts in 50 stores in early 2014. Looking back, there were many reasons why Blowpaste was set up to fail there.

The biggest challenge was timing and timing is everything in business. Blowpaste was put on the shelves in the lull months after Valentine's Day, which made trying to break into their market doubly challenging. I had just started tweeting and sharing about Spencer's once it hit the shelves; and from a marketing standpoint, that was too late. The publicity should have been launched months before. Also, the packaging didn't stand out, and though subtlety was my selling point (discreet enough for conservative shy people), it just didn't pop against my competitors on the shelves. And shelf placement... don't get me started.

I could have quit then, but I pressed on, analyzing everything from the Spencer's test phase, and became more determined to make Blowpaste better. I was still selling in boutique shops and many customers really liked my stuff. So for 4 months, I teamed up with my graphic designer, and we studied labels and went to various adult shops. I learned about labels, colors, and style. I also got the opinions of various adult shop owners who advised me on packaging and pricing.

In the middle of all of that, I honed my pitch further, which goes a little something like this:

Blowpaste is a lube that's edible, gluten free, and the only lube in the world that's good for your teeth! Packaged in a tube that resembles toothpaste, it travels discreetly and can hang out on a nightstand without being too obvious that it's for (gasp!) sex.

Why use Blowpaste:

- Blowpaste eliminates the post-brush so you can fall asleep in your lover's arms.
- Blowpaste increases saliva production.
- Great for massage – Minty Sanchez, Orangasmic, and Cinnamoan are excellent at encouraging foreplay. Hand jobs become even less of a job.
- Vegan Certified through Vegan Action – we do not test on animals (just human beings!)
- Great Lip Gloss!

The silver lining to my earlier story happened about a month after the Spencer's test ended. Blowpaste had just gotten into Lovers Playground's 17 midwest boutique stores after eight months of vigorous courtship and wooing. And then out of the blue, I got a call from Spencer's Gifts corporate office. Apparently, after all of their data was computed, it turned out that Blowpaste was a hit on the online store, and that team wanted us back for more.

Persistence, continued improvement, lots of helping hands, and following the penis signs...those are the magical ingredients in Blowpaste's journey thus far. OH, and love.

I t didn't take long for us to become friends. It didn't take long for us to become great friends. Sometimes people come into your life at the right time and it just fits. The relationship provides something that is missing, something you didn't even know you needed, but now that it's there, you can't live without it. Today I got to connect the Dot.

I've been really close to Dot Marie Jones for almost three years, and her ride lately has been one that's worth talking about.

Dot Marie Jones, known to the world as Coach Beiste, on the hit show Glee, is truly one of a kind, and it has nothing to do with a TV show.

It doesn't matter that she was a champion and set records for Shot Put at Fresno State, or was an arm wrestling champion ready to take on any man out there. It doesn't matter that she was a youth counselor at the Fresno County Juvenile Probation center. It doesn't matter that she is a 3-Time Emmy Nominee.

What matters to her is the now. And this is what makes Dot Marie Jones one of a kind.

The now includes her wife Bridgett, their three daughters (11, 15, & 21), Perry the Pig, and one of the hottest story lines to ever hit a major primetime network.

Bridgett and Dot first met at the Atlanta airport, where Bridgett thought she was just a local, because she "looked familiar", but once her daughter introduced her to Glee, her jaw dropped. "That's her!" Social media made it easy for Bridgett to connect, and Dot says "That was it." The couple met for the first time in Las Vegas and the connection to our great city has been a huge part of the couple's life. The escape it provides, the entertainment, and simply the chance to go back to where it all started is something they hold dear and is something many of us only dream of having...The chance to go back to where it all started.

Married in their back yard with 20 of their closest friends in late 2013, Cheryl and I were there (the journey has become somewhat normal) in a city or industry that is anything but. Dot will be the first to tell you that taking her 15 year old to school every morning is the ultimate highlight, and when she's on set for 16 hours and can't pick her up, it's a let down. "I love laughing with her the whole way there. Of course I want to work all the time, but dropping her off or picking her up is something

I look forward to everyday."

When it comes to work, Coach Beiste brings the goods. And Ryan Murphy, the co-creator of the hit show Glee, has saved the best for this final season. Glee has always given us great story lines, but this is a first for Prime Time Television. The Coach revealed that she will be transitioning from a woman to a man. And if you watch the clip from the episode, this may have secured her a fourth Emmy Nomination. But for Dot, it's never been about recognition or accolades, it's about the work. She credits Mr. Murphy for the amazing material and recalls the first time she worked on a pilot of his "Pretty Handsome" where she played a Trans Man. Her co-star on the project was Alexandra Billings (Transparent) and she was an open book. "Alex is amazing and was so helpful, beautiful, kind. She made coming to work one of the best experiences." Her insight and knowledge has helped Dot with this new chapter on Glee. "I found out when I read the script. I was like, ah sh*t I have cancer, no wait...I'm gonna be a guy, no wait...I'm gonna be a gay guy! The beginning of the episode I lie and use cancer as my cover, then I come clean. It was a great ride."

The scene plays out opposite Jane Lynch and quickly became an internet sensation. The writing is tight and the performances are perfect. "I love Jane so much. I was genuinely crying that day." This is the final season for Glee and Dot is ready for whatever comes next. The world will have their eyes opened to the transgender community and it couldn't come at a better time. Dot is quick to point out that this is only the beginning of what she hopes is more and more "real life" issues being played out on TV. "We need to see this. People go through this all the time and it's important and I'm honored to tell their story." One of the highlights for me was when Dot delivers the line of the episode: "It's not about who I want to go to bed with, it's about who I want to go to bed as."

Whatever the future holds for Dot Marie Jones after Glee, understand this... she is the real deal and is as genuine as they come. I am honored to have her in my life and thrilled to have let you all connect the Dot, just a little.

Dr. Eva Littman sees a pattern among gay couples who visit her Las Vegas fertility center with hopes of becoming parents. Often, one or both men want to pass their DNA onto their child.

Fertility Center Offers Options for Gay Couples

[ by Red Rock Fertility Center ]

"They want their own children," says Littman, founder and director of Red Rock Fertility Center. "Like many prospective parents, they want to see parts of themselves passed onto their offspring and to build that natural connection."

Fortunately, modern technology helps gay couples achieve biological parenthood, Littman says. Numerous options are available that allow one or both men to be involved in contributing genetic material to their offspring. It is also easier for gay couples in Las Vegas to pursue some of these options, Littman notes, as a result of the recent legalization of gay marriage in Nevada. Gay couples enjoy the legal rights of all married couples, including the enforcement of gestational carrier contracts.

"Now that the law has changed, our clinic is seeing an increase in same-sex couples seeking our services," Littman notes.

There are multiple methods available for gay couples to build their families, Littman says.

To ensure both men grow their family trees, some couples opt to utilize the sperm of one man and eggs from the other man's sister, which are fertilized and transferred into a gestational carrier. Other couples choose for each man to have his own genetic child using an anonymous egg donor. Under these circumstances, the center fertilizes half of the donor's eggs with one man's sperm, and the other half with the other man's sperm. The eventual result is the couple having two children at different times.

Another option includes both men contributing sperm, which is mixed and fertilized with a donor's eggs, allowing the potential for either man to be the father. Littman doesn't recommend this process, as it is important to know which man is the father to provide a clear medical history for the child and to know the risk of the child inheriting a genetic disease.

"Identifying the father is key for monitoring a child's potential health issues," she says.

Prior to participating in these fertilization services, men undergo a preparatory process including semen analysis, taking male fertility supplements and following a special diet rich in protein, antioxidants and green vegetables to boost fertility.

"It helps for men to be in the best shape possible," Littman says, noting that weight loss often helps improve sperm quality.

This preparation and the fertilization process takes roughly two months, Littman says, with typically a 90-percent success rate among gay couples in achieving pregnancy on the first try.

"Same-sex couples have very high success rates because they're typically not infertile," she says. "We encourage couples to consider all of their options for building their dream families."

Red Rock Fertility Center can answer any questions couples have about these fertility services, she adds. For more information, visit www.lasvegasfertility.com. www.gay.vegas/redrockfertility

HUNDREDS OF COCKTAILS • FIVE SEMINARS • THREE DAYS • ONE CAUSE

For The Love Of Cocktails is Las Vegas' three-day premier mixology charity event, featuring seminars with industry leading mixologists, a grand gala cocktail reception with hundreds of handcrafted cocktails February 12th-14th at Mandalay Bay Resort and Casino and Delano Las Vegas.

What is the "For the Love of Cocktails" event and who does it help? What does the charity do?

For the Love of Cocktails was started as a benefit gala for the Helen David Relief Fund. This year it will be at three day event with educational seminars by some of the most respected mixologists in the industry, Meet the Masters Dinner with wine parings from top Sommeliers in Las Vegas, The Life of a Bartender event at Herbs & Rye and the Grand Gala which will feature bartenders and mixologists from the top resorts and restaurants in Las Vegas all creating original Valentine's Day cocktails. It's going to be a huge event for a good cause. The Helen David Relief Fund, that benefits bartenders and their families that have been affected by breast cancer, was started by Las Vegas Master Mixologist Tony Abou Ganim and was named after his Aunt who lost her battle with breast cancer. Helen taught Tony how to bartend and was his mentor.

What is your involvement with For the Love of Cocktails?

This will be my second year at For the Love of Cocktails. I'll be serving my original cocktail featuring Absolut Orient Apple called the "Apple Ginger Kosmo" at the Grand Gala. I will also be coordinating the teams as the USBG representative before and during the event.

Whats it like to be a gay bartender in general? At this event?

I would say being a gay bartender in Las Vegas sometimes has some unique challenges. It really depends on where you're bartending. Today it is more accepted to be out in the workplace than when I started bartending in 2000. Some restaurants or straight nightclubs made it difficult if you didn't fit the typical "dude" or "sports guy" role. For the most part though my experience bartending in Las Vegas has been amazing, from opening nightclubs like Krave to working at Piranha and Share I've had a blast watching our scene grow. Once I began competing in cocktail competitions I started focusing on education and honing my craft. That has lead to traveling around the world, creating Mixology Made Simple, appearing as an Expert on Bar Rescue, being the first LGBT Vice President of the local United States Bartenders Guild chapter and becoming the Absolut Brand Ambassador for Las Vegas.

What is your career like and how well does Absolut represent the LGBT community?

I couldn't be happier with what I'm doing professionally. I've always enjoyed teaching and the Ambassador role allows me the opportunity to share what I know about vodka and why Absolut is special. I also get to visit and host events for bartenders and beverage industry people around the city. One of the main reasons I really wanted to work for Absolut was its support of the LGBT community. Every drop of Absolut is made in Sweden and Sweden is one of the most progressive countries in the world when it comes to gay and transgender rights. Absolut was also the only large company in 80's to advertise in LGBT magazines, we are also helping the launch G.L.A.S.S. the first LGBT beverage industry trade organization and we also released the Absolut Colors bottle in 2008 which was collaboration with Gilbert Baker, the creator of the pride flag.

Meet the Queens

"RuPaul's Drag Race" returns to Logo TV with a gaggle of queens so ingenious, a competition so unpredictable and a judges' panel so packed with talent, you'll be seeing stars! New this season, RuPaul welcomes pop culture aficionados Carson Kressley and Ross Mathews to the permanent judging panel alongside Michelle Visage. Kressley and Mathews will leave fans gagging with their rapid-fire quick wit, impeccable sense of style and signature sass. Think you know this race? Honey, you have no idea.

"Yes, Virginia, there is a gay Santa Claus!" exclaimed Executive Producer, RuPaul. "I asked for a new, wickedly funny, smart and experienced judge...and I got two! Ross and Carson are the perfect addition to the 'RuPaul's Drag Race' family because they're not just show biz experts, they're superfans and longtime lovers of the art of drag."

"Oh what a thrill to be a judge on season 7 of 'RuPaul's Drag Race!'" declared Carson Kressley. "The wigs, the lashes, the gowns -- but enough about us judges -- the girls this season are so 'sickening,' it's the best season yet!"

"I have never been more qualified to do anything in my entire life," said Ross Mathews. "As quite possibly the biggest super fan of 'RuPaul's Drag Race' in the entire galaxy, I take my position as a judge very seriously and will proudly serve as a voice for my fellow super fans -- albeit, a very high-pitched voice."

Ginger Minj

"I should win RuPaul's Drag Race because I embody-ody-ody all the best qualities of each previous winner with a heapin' dose of southern fried sass and unique charm all my own!

Sing? Act?
Strut my stuff on the runway?
Help you repent for your wicked sins?

I'm the cross dresser for you! And it's about time a gal of girth took the title. If America can super size their french fries, why can't they super size their drag stars?!

Jaidynn Diore Fierce

I should be the winner of RuPaul's drag race because drag is my passion, and I've worked very hard for the past 4 years to get to this point.

I would like to be an inspiration for anyone who is plus size, edgy, and has been told they are not good enough.

"I was already a drag superstar
I just needed
America to know."

Jasmine Masters

Kandy Ho

"I feel I should win RPDR Season 7 because I have what it takes to snatch the crown.

The public obviously loves some Kandy so why not give them what they want.

A Puerto Rican needs to take the crown already damnit!"

Katya

I should be the winner of RuPaul's Drag Race because I really want to get on Celebrity Big Brother.

I should be the winner of "Rupaul's Drag Race" because I have given 17 years of my life in this profession, 7 of which have been full time dedication to the art form.

I have worked hard putting my community first by doing whatever it took to ensure the satisfaction of my community.

I should be the winner because I deserve it.

Kennedy Davenport

Max

"I will take the prize, because I understand the work and responsibilities involved to build something authentic.

Not to forget the fun, the adventure, and the longevity!

Becoming a "Superstar" means you've got a public platform from which to do good, and I plan to do just so."

"I would be honored to Win RuPaul's Drag Race to be the embodiment of hope for anyone who ever felt not enough or was made to feel not enough, or broken.

I want to be an advocate for the future of love and light through this vessel as Miss Fame.

This is my purpose on this planet."

Miss Fame

Mrs Kasha Davis

"I should be the winner of "Rupaul's Drag Race because I need more places to wear my extensive collection of Mother of the Bride Gowns.

I can't tell you how many weddings and bar mitzfaqs Mr. Davis and I have crashed, where not only did I rock the Electric slide, but with my two piece tear away skirts KILLED it with my rendition of SINGLE LADIES."

Pearl

"I should win
RuPaul's Drag
Race so I can buy 100,000 slices of pizza and share
it with you!"

Sasha Belle

"You know who should win, who deserves to win, is me!"

I'm the purtiest...
best damn tapper...
the most smartest!"

"I should be the winner of RuPaul's Drag Race so I can let the other contestants out of the muddy pit I dug in my basement

They put the lotion on or they get the hose.... drag skin suit anyone?

Anyone???"

Tempest DuJour

"Because I never got a call back after that group job interview at Forever 21.

And I'm tired of pretending I'm not home when my landlord knocks."

Trixie Mattel

Violet Chachki

"I should win RuPaul's drag race because I'm the girl you love to hate AND hate to love!"

SLEEPING AROUND

[ by Michael Barbieri ]
myvegasobsession.com

I wasn't sure what to expect from the Mirage, but this tropical oasis of a casino hotel definitely delivered...and then some! I enjoyed my stay at the Mirage very, very much and even now, often find myself thinking about it and how much I'd like to return.

Opening in 1989, the Mirage was built by Steve Wynn. The theme is said to be French Polynesia. You'll find nods to its theme everywhere - from the grass-roofed environment of its porte-cochère, to the brass mermaid statues that flank its main entrance, to the huge aquarium behind the check-in desk, which holds nearly 1000 different sea creatures. Of course, the feature for which the Mirage is best known, is its erupting volcano out front. Having undergone a renovation in 2008, it's as impressive as ever...maybe even more so. The final blast of flame is pretty massive and worth the wait!

As you step through the main entrance, the first thing you see is a huge, domed atrium filled with palm trees, water features, bromeliads and other tropical plant life, all of which immediately put you in that island state of mind. As you look up through the glass dome, you can see the huge hotel above you. It's an amazing sight. To the right is the registration desk and to the left, some of the terrific restaurants. Once you've checked in, you walk through the atrium and casino, eventually reaching the elevators to the guest rooms.

On this trip, I brought my friend Scott along as my official site photographer. I had always found the rates at the Mirage to be quite reasonable. In this case, they were so good, I booked us into separate rooms. At check-in, I requested an upgrade to Strip view rooms and was easily accommodated. (Lesson: Always ASK! It can never hurt!!) We had arrived earlier than the appointed check-in time, but they took my cell number and promised a text message when the rooms were ready. Brilliant! We checked our bags at the bell desk and went to have some lunch.

Once upstairs, I found my room to be spotlessly clean, larger than I had expected and extremely comfortable. Ours were two of the newly renovated rooms. In my room, the closet and bathroom were to the left, with a large, sleek wall unit to the right, featuring a mini-bar, drawer space, the flat-screen TV and a nice sized desk with a handy media hub at which to connect and charge most electronic devices. Opposite the wall unit was the large, comfortable, pillow-top bed. The window, looking out onto the Strip from the side of the hotel, afforded me a view of the Linq, the Flamingo, and most of the Caesar's Palace complex. I also had a lovely view of the Mirage's large pool and the dolphin habitat off in the distance. Very nice! The bathroom was immaculate, done in white marble, with a combination shower/tub, made a little more spacious with a curved shower curtain rod.

I also want to mention the Mirage's fantastic pool. I'm not a big pool-goer, as I'm so fair skinned, but once the sun began to set, I ventured out and swam around and played under the waterfall - like swimming in the tropics!

The Spa at the Mirage is one of my favorites in Vegas - small, in comparison to some, but very comfortable. Celebrity stylist Kim Vo has a salon here, and of course there is a shopping area.

The casino, while always busy, can become a bit crazy toward the weekend. During the week, though, it's comfortable, with a nice amount of daylight coming in through the atrium dome. At night, there are substantial crowds, for any number of good reasons. First of all, the Mirage is home to two hit shows - The Beatles "LOVE", from Cirque du Soleil, and Terry Fator, the hilarious, multi-talented ventriloquist, who quite deservedly won Season 2 of America's Got Talent.

There are also a number of fantastic restaurants - among them, Tom Colicchio's Heritage Steak, with a focus on meats prepared over open flame, Japonais - contemporary Japanese cuisine in a modern, elegant setting, Samba Steakhouse, a bustling, colorful little restaurant serving skewers of roasted meats in the Brazilian "rodizio" style. BLT Burger has some of the best burgers and shakes in Vegas, and there's even a Las Vegas branch of the iconic Carnegie Deli, if you want a good nosh!

The Mirage has quite the nightlife scene as well - 1 OAK, which stands for 1-Of-A-Kind, a dance club featuring state of the art lighting and sound, The Beatles REVOLUTION Lounge, a psychedelic Ultra-Lounge/dance club, which is home to REVOSundays, the most elite and longest-running Gay Night on the Las Vegas Strip, where the sexiest male and female Go-Go's turn up the heat to make sure customers drink and dance the night away! There's RHUMBAR, serving tropical concoctions on an open air patio overlooking the Strip, and even the Bare Pool Lounge - an adults only pool, where DJ's spin and women are allowed to go topless. Very Vegas!

As I said before, I enjoyed my stay at the Mirage thoroughly and am definitely looking forward to returning. If you're planning a visit to Las Vegas I suggest you check out their rates, which I think are quite good.

If you like the glitz and energy of Vegas, and the lovely, relaxing atmosphere of a South Sea island, I think you'll just love the Mirage - a beautiful oasis in the middle of the Nevada desert.

Got a question? Email

Dear Queenie, I am worried. My long term boyfriend has stopped being attentive in the bedroom. We were active nightly but, now nothing. I need your advice.

Darling, I am sorry that you are going through this situation; my advice is to grab him by his joy stick, take to the bedroom and remind him of why he chose you. If that fails, as I always say... "Next!"

Dear Queenie, Kim is my partner of 18 years and does not want to marry me, even though we can in Nevada. We have 4 kids and 1 grandchild. I just want to make us legal. What should I do?

I understand your willingness to jump into a "marriage." The issue is Kim may need to understand how this affects every part of your life, including health care, taxes, and even children and grandchildren. Consult with a gay or gay-friendly family law attorneys for better advice than Queenie has. Good Luck.

Dear Queenie, I am not the pretty boy, and when I go to the clubs I cannot even get a look unless I am paying for the drinks and then still at the end of the night home alone. What is wrong?

Oh my, where do I start... Darling? First STOP trying to buy friendship or attention. Second, what clubs are you visiting? An occasional night out to see the fun and pretty boys is ok. However, you may want to look for a place that is more low-key where. Find a place where you can talk. Or, you can keep spending your Friday paycheck, only to go home alone, depressed and broke.

Dear Queenie, Help, I went for a waxing and the salon burned my scrotum, what should I do?

Baby, you know what they say, pain is beauty, so grab some organic cocoNUT oil to soothe the burn. If you can't take the heat, join Dollar Shave Club or grow out that bush.

Becoming Killian James

[ by Kehny Aulita ]

The day Killian James posted his first ad on Rentboy.com, he received notices from four of the leading film studios, all wanting him for their adult movies. He responded with appreciation to all but accepted none, opting to hold out until he had built up a name for himself in the adult world first. "I wanted to be an escort who did porn, not a porn star who escorted," he explains. "A porn star that escorts is perceived as someone who does it because he has to. I escort because I want to. There's a big difference."

Killian says he enjoys the many perks that come from escorting. "I get access to places I'd normally never be admitted to. Weekends at Hamptons estates and Miami mansions, tickets to theatre and exclusive restaurants."

He also enjoys the velvet rope treatment at clubs. It's really nice to be recognized and not have to wait on line or worry about if you're on a guest list.

He describes Killian James as a role he plays. "It's like starring on my own reality TV show. At home in my pajamas, I'm one person. I love sinking into my sofa with a great book and my French bulldog beside me. Then, at night, when I step out to an event or gay club, I become Killian James. It's fun to flick the switch and turn into someone else, especially a guy like Killian. He's pretty outrageous."

Killian James is the life of the party but there's a serious side to him too: a calculated and business savvy side that stems from his years as an accountant. He carefully monitors online reviews from clients and reads everything that is written about him in magazines and newspapers. "I care about how I'm perceived. Escorting is a service industry and I take my brand very seriously. My clients have come to expect the best and I strive to deliver it to them every time they call on me."

He has been rewarded for his hard work and diligence. In March, Killian James won the "Best Bottom" category at the 2014 International Escorts Awards, Rentboy.com's annual ceremony honoring the industry's top stars.

He counts the win as the year's highest achievement. "It's the industry's top prize. Like winning the Grammy for musicians. And I won it after only 8 months in the business! It was a huge moment for me. As soon as I caught my breath, I began to reconsider the film offers. All of a sudden, it felt like the right time was right to expand into something new within the industry."

He considered all options and chose Randy Blue because they are among the most prestigious of the gay adult studios. "I felt honored to have been selected by them. Their boys are the hottest in film."

Three movies in and Killian is enjoying the experience. "It's obviously a lot different than real life sex," he laughs. "The lights in your face and having someone whisper corrections at you when you turn your ass too much to the side takes some getting used to, but I have clicked with and been turned on by every guy I have filmed with. We often keep going after the director yells cut."

Killian has sights on breaking into reality T.V. next. "I'm working on something right now," he confides. "It's still in the development stage but looks promising."

And why shouldn't it? The accountant turned- fitness trainer – turned - award winning escort – turned - adult film star has all the makings of a hit reality TV show complete with drama, fabulousness, and an ever-evolving plot that even he is not sure where it will wind up.

These are uncharted waters that he is navigating through. But Killian James is steering the ship and it's full sail ahead.
